ROOSEVELT, 6; TAFT, 4; IS TODAY'S PROBABLE SCORE

Lines Sharply Drawn in Five District Conventions Scheduled by Republicans in Indiana.

TAFT IN SECOND.

Vincennes, Ind., March 28.—The Taft supporters in the Second district convention elected their delegates, David R. Scott and Dr. Perry Wooden, by 69 to 37, but they were not instructed.

Indianapolis, March 28.—Managers of the Roosevelt movement expected to add six and the Taft delegates four to their scores in the race for Indiana delegates to the national republican convention today. Five district conventions are to be held this afternoon and it appeared the Roosevelt men would have a majority in the Sixth, Eighth and Ninth and that Taft delegates would be chosen in the Second and Tenth.

Of the sixteen members of Indiana's delegation already elected, fourteen have been instructed for Taft and two for Roosevelt.

Since Tuesday's state convention at which four delegates at large were chosen and instructed for Taft, and after which Roosevelt delegates met and elected four contesting delegates at large workers on both sides have been laboring with the delegates to the district convention. The effect may be to materially change the line-up hitherto drawn by the leaders of the district vote in the state convention.

The thoroughness with which the situation has been canvassed is indicated by the fact that a Taft worker drove thirty miles in a motor car through the mud of country roads late yesterday to talk with one delegate.

Call It a Menace.

That the Roosevelt movement since Tuesday's convention can be regarded only as a menace to the party's chance for success in the state is the argument of the Taft managers to the district delegates and politicians that have been inclined to the colonel's cause.

They represent that the Roosevelt "rump" convention was a small and extremely informal meeting, that many of the faction's leaders did not countenance the action and since have declared that as the regular convention endorsed the renomination of the president it is the duty of all republicans to forget their differences and join in a strong pull up the hill to November 5 under the leadership of Mr. Taft.

Members of the Taft headquarters here did not care to estimate the effect of this campaign on the results of today's conventions. At the offices of the Roosevelt movement it was insisted reports were that the colonel's supporters were still in line and that they would show a majority in the three districts they have claimed right along, and that the contest for the delegates at large would be determinedly pushed before the Chicago convention.

Roosevelt in Ninth.

The Ninth district convention at Lebanon, elected William H. Dye and William Endicott delegates instructed for Roosevelt. The Roosevelt faction had a majority of seventeen votes in the convention of 125 delegates. The Taft slate for delegates was J. R. Bonnell and A. V. Conrad.

KEALING HITS BACK.

Indiana Leader Replies to Roosevelt Charge of Fraud.

Indianapolis, March 28.—Joseph B. Kealing, one of the Taft managers in Indiana, today in a public statement replied to Col. Roosevelt's charge in his Chicago speech that "the Kealing machine" fraudulently unseated 200 delegates to the state convention, which instructed four delegates-at-large to vote for the renomination of the president.

"Col. Roosevelt is grossly misinformed or is deliberately stating an untruth," said Kealing. "We contested only fifteen seats and the Roosevelt people contested 150, among them seats of 127 delegates from the Indianapolis district, who had been elected at primaries by a four to one vote. We simply prevented these legally elected delegates being unseated.

"The Roosevelt faction knew the Taft people had a majority in the convention and begged for a compromise. They asked that we give Roosevelt two delegates-at-large and take two for Taft. That we declined to do. They were perfectly willing to accept two delegates from this same convention they now denounce as fraudulent."

ROOSEVELT ON THE JOB OF BEING KING.

Chicago, March 28.—Colonel Roosevelt last night turned aside from his prepared speech from time to time. In one of his sallies he discussed the statements of his opponents that he hopes to be dictator.

"There is no much danger to the people," he said, "from a man who can do nothing unless he can persuade them that what he wants is right. I am going to make one remark I have often been tempted to make, but never have made before. Occasionally my gloomy foes have said I wanted to be king. I wanted to answer that they did not know kings and I did. I like the kings I have met, but I don't want to be one, because the function of those kings, expressed in the terms of democracy, would be the position of vice president for life with the leadership of the four hundred thrown in. I think there are other jobs that a full sized man would prefer."

MAKES APPEAL TO THE MINERS

Premier Asks Britons to Accept Minimum Wage Bill.

STRIKE NEARS END

London, March 28.—Premier Asquith this morning issued an appeal to the miners of Great Britain to accept the minimum wage bill, which, he said, would effect largely what they had fought for. The premier made this appeal in a speech to the liberal members of the house of commons.

The end of the calamitous national coal strike which has so sorely affected many millions of the population of the United Kingdom during the last four weeks is at hand.

Most of the million miners who left their work on March 1 would return to the pits immediately, but in each district there are determined extremists who oppose any action until the vote called for on the question of resumption of work or continuance of the strike has been cast and counted.

Fighters Cause Trouble.

It is the out-and-out fighters who are causing the trouble which necessitated the dispatch yesterday of troops to Chirk in Wales and in Cannock in the Midlands, where efforts were made last night to prevent the men working.

Other owners are opening their mines today and those men who wish to start work will receive full protection from

LORIMER, ALSO WILL HOLD SEAT

Former Action Held Bar to Further Proceedings Against Him.

BY VOTE OF 5 TO 3

Washington, March 28.—The right of Senator Lorimer, of Illinois, to his seat in the United States senate was upheld today by the special investigation committee which decided that the senate's vote sustaining Mr. Lorimer in the last congress on substantially the same charges barred any further proceedings against him. The vote was five to three.

The committee's action was sweeping. It not only adopted the "res judicata" resolution prepared by Senator Jones, of Washington, but other resolutions favoring the Lorimer contentions.

The Jones resolution declaring that the pending case had already been covered by the previous trial of Lorimer in the senate and that to again place the Illinois senator on trial would not be in accord with the principle of "res judicata." Another resolution adopted exonerated Edward Hines, of Chicago, president of a large lumber company, of any wrong doing.

By a vote of five to nothing the committee adopted a resolution declaring that if there was any corrupt dealing in connection with Lorimer's election to the senate, Lorimer had no knowledge of it.

"Jack Pot" Not Established.

The committee also took action declaring that there was no conclusive evidence of a legislative "jack pot." On the resolution declaring that Lorimer had no knowledge of any corrupt dealings, Senator Kern, Kenyon and Lea, who opposed Lorimer, refrained from voting.

The committee vote on the Jones resolution follows: For Lorimer—Dillingham, Gamble, Jones, Johnston and Fletcher.

Against Lorimer—Kern, Kenyon and Lea.

The senate committee today resumed consideration of the case of the junior senator from Illinois with the expectation that a report might be voted upon before adjournment. A test vote in the committee yesterday seemed to indicate that the committee stood five to three in favor of Senator Lorimer. Under these circumstances it is certain that majority and minority reports ultimately will be made to the senate.

Friends of Senator Lorimer appeared confident today that he would retain his seat. The effort will be made to have the senate pass first of all upon the extra-legal phases of the case, the plea having been made that the senate has no right to try the senator a second time on substantially the same charges.

NEW HOPE FAILS; DEADLOCK HOLDS

Sub-Committee of Miners and Operators Report No Progress, Coal Strike Seems Certain.

Cleveland, O., March 28.—The subcommittee of bituminous operators and miners, in conference today in the hope of reaching an agreement that would avert a widespread coal strike in the United States beginning next Monday, announced this afternoon that it had been unable to agree and would so report to the full conference at 3 o'clock.

The members said their arguments had brought about a continuation of the deadlock, as operators and miners repeated their positions of a week ago.

Whether the sub committee's inability to agree would be accepted as the final position of the full conference was not stated, but the operators declared their only hope of a settlement came in an intimation from the miners that the union was anxious to avert a strike but to do so "it must have an increase in pay no matter how small the increase was."

The miners said they were not prepared to state that they would accept a smaller advance than that originally demanded.

All other means of agreeing had failed and it was said that unless a compromise was effected 350,000 miners in the bituminous fields would quit Sunday night and the suspension would be in effect a strike.

As for the 150,000 miners in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania it was announced by national union officials today that a strike there next Monday now was unavoidable. No steps toward reuniting the anthracite miners and operators had been taken since they broke off their negotiations in New York March 13.

Vast Issue Involved.

Jointly the wage disputes involve a threatened strike of almost 600,000 miners and the shutting down of almost every unionized coal mine in the country.

With only three days intervening before the time set for the shutdown in case no agreement is reached, the bituminous conference's sub-committee went to work today after announcing that no tentative plan of agreement had been drawn up and so far as both sides could say there was no immediate prospect of agreeing.

The conference represents the wage dispute only in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, where 200,000 miners are employed, but it fixes the basis of wage agreements for other states. A previous reference to a subcommittee had resulted in a failure to agree.

"A strike in the anthracite fields may be said already to have been ordered," said John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Anthracite Strike Certain.

"That much of the situation is settled. The strike there will take effect automatically and it requires no further referendum vote of the union or action by the policy committee. The anthracite men understood thoroughly no wage scale exists upon which they can continue to work after Sunday midnight and they accordingly must quit."

The miners in the anthracite fields are distributed in Pennsylvania as follows: Lackawanna and Wyoming valley, 75,000; Hazelton and Panther Creek valley, 40,000; Pottsville and Lykens valley, 60,000.

Although both anthracite and bituminous miners have granted increases in pay ranging from 10 to 20 per cent and radical changes in working conditions, the union officials have attempted to adjust the differences separately.

In anticipation of a general strike, it was announced that practically all the anthracite mines would be closed, but that in the case of the bituminous mines there would be exceptions. The union contracts in Wyoming, Montana, Washington and Colorado do not expire on April 1, and the mines therefore would remain at work there. The contracts in the southwestern field, embracing Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri would require a sixty days' notice before the men may suspend. The non-union mines of the country, which would not

MUST TEACH HELL, SAYS DR. MUNHALL

Philadelphia Man Talks to North Indiana M. E. Ministers.

HE SCORES MODERNISM

Wabash, Ind., March 28.—"You must teach hell and a coming judgment and you must fear the power of eternal punishment, many statements of the Christ being warnings against hell as an everlasting punishment."

With this statement the Rev. L. W. Munhall, of Philadelphia, Pa., today, in an address to the North Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference, severely criticized pastors that devote much of their sermons to discussion of current topics.

A report of the book committee was presented showing a quarter of a million dollars had been turned over for distribution among superannuates this year and that this conference is apportioned $3,889, which is $869 in excess of last year.

OHIO BEGINS FALLING.

Cincinnati, March 28.—After remaining stationary at 53.4 feet practically all day yesterday and last night, the Ohio river began falling here today.

STRIKERS SMASH MILL WINDOWS

Destruction of Property Attends Textile Trouble.

MISSILES ARE HURLED

Lowell, Mass., March 28.—The first destruction of mill property since the beginning of the strike of textile workers and the resulting shutdown of half a dozen cotton mills took place today during a parade of several hundred strikers. Windows were broken by paraders in the factory of the Bigelow Carpet company and in the United States Bobbin and Shuttle company's plant. No one was hurt. One man was arrested on a charge of malicious destruction of property.

With the declaration by labor leaders last night that the strike against the Lawrence Manufacturing company, a hosiery plant, was off and the announcement by the United States Bunting company that an additional increase in wages of 5 per cent, making a total of 10 per cent, had been granted, the strikers concentrated their efforts this morning against the plant of the Bigelow Manufacturing company. They were unsuccessful.

After passing through the business section of the city the marchers paraded through the Polish tenement district and then entered the exclusive residential section, known as Belvidere. The parade again turned into the manufacturing section. Passing the plant of the United States Bobbin and Shuttle company on Rogers street, stones, ice and sticks of wood were thrown at the windows. The next moment the police automobile truck drew up and officers arrested one of the alleged offenders. Several stones were thrown at the police, but the strike leaders' exhortations to keep order prevailed. The paraders ultimately returned to the business district and poured into the Industrial workers of the World hall. There a meeting was held, after which the crowd dispersed.

BREWERY WORKERS STRIKE.

South Bend, Ind., March 28.—Employes of three brewing companies of South Bend and Mishawaka struck yesterday following the refusal of the employers to grant an increase in wages. Shorter hours and the abolition of "slush money" are also demanded by the men. The brewers claim the demands are unreasonable and offered a compromise scale, which was rejected.

CATHOLIC PRIEST IS NAMED FOR MAYOR.

Lapeer, Mich., March 28.—Father E. W. Dunnigan, pastor of the Lapeer Catholic church, was yesterday nominated for mayor on the republican ticket.

Close friends of the priest say he will run, although nominated against his wishes.

REIGN OF MARTIAL LAW MAY BE AN EXTENDED ONE

Soldiery Awes Rioters at Rock Island But Officials Hold It Unsafe to Withdraw Troops.

Rock Island, Ill., March 28.—After a quiet night citizens of Rock Island today discussed with Mayor Schriver and Sheriff Bruner the possibility of further riot troubles and the question of how long the soldiers of the Sixth regiment will be needed to preserve order.

Many business men favored immediate withdrawal of the militia, but city and county officials would not listen to this proposition. Others said they believed it would be necessary to hold the militia until after the primary election April 9.

Although soldiers and deputy sheriffs made scores of arrests in the railroad yards and along the river front last night there was no disturbance worthy of comment. Those arrested were taken to the county jail and will be held for investigation.

Bayonets and swords have brought a brief period of surface tranquillity to riot-ridden Rock Island's civic volcano.

Twelve companies of national guards marched into the city late yesterday afternoon, took the reins of government from the civil authorities and are enforcing peace at the points of bayonets.

What may happen when the malcontents become less in awe of the invaders no one can say. The most optimistic do not believe that the dissatisfied citizens have given up plans for revenge upon the city government. All they hope for is that fear may prevent some fresh outbreak until an armistice may be patched up or the malcontents have been given an opportunity to forget their troubles.

Powder Men Arrested.

A slight idea of the possibilities of the situation may be found in the fact that a score of "powder men"—workers in high explosives—were found skulking in a railroad yard last night and arrested.

With their arrest it is believed that a dynamite outrage has been frustrated. Soldiers and civilians last night were searching for the hidden mine of explosives believed to be concealed some place about the outskirts of the city.

The city was turned over to the military authorities yesterday afternoon on the repeated pleas of Sheriff Oscar L. Bruner, who appealed to Governor Deneen for troops.

The result was that the sheriff appeared at the court house square at 3 o'clock and, amid a crowd of scowling men and women, read a proclamation announcing the temporary retirement of the civil authorities.

From 3 o'clock until late at night company after company of national guard were unloaded from special trains and marched to improvised barracks in the city hall and county building.

Some of the state troops were formed into a double line about the city hall with orders not to permit anyone to loiter about the building. Men and women were not permitted to gather in twos and threes and the order to "move on" demanded strict obedience or a rough thrust from a weapon.

Silence Is Ominous.

The result was that within an hour after the first troops had appeared in the street the city was, to all outward appearances, more quiet and peaceable than ordinarily. But the real meaning of this ominous silence was appreciated by the troops as much as by the citizens themselves.

By the time the last company had arrived the entire membership of the Sixth regiment had been unloaded in the city.

The most trying problem that has been put up to the officials thus far is Harry McCaskrin, republican candidate for the nomination for state's attorney.

McCaskrin Is Blamed.

The city administration insists that McCaskrin is responsible, through inflammatory utterances, for the outbreak of Tuesday night. McCaskrin, however, stoutly maintains that it was his intervention alone that prevented a wholesale slaughter of policemen or civilians.

In the face of opposition from both the civic and military authorities, McCaskrin insisted upon making a speech at Moline last evening. That he feared an attack from some source was evi-

COLONEL DID NOT THREATEN A BOLT

Will Say It Himself When He Has Anything to Say on That Subject, Declares Mr. Roosevelt.

St. Louis, March 28.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived here this morning and during the day he was to be the guest of the Million Population club. Tonight he will speak in the First Regiment armory under the auspices of the Missouri Roosevelt club.

Reports that Col. Roosevelt had intimated that he would bolt from his party in case he fails of nomination brought forth a denial from the colonel today.

"Any statement like that is untrue," he said. "Any time I have anything to say on that subject I will say it myself and anything purporting to come from me unless I say it myself is a fake."

Makes Other Denials.

Colonel Roosevelt was told that he was quoted as having said in Chicago that republicans were not bound to respect nominations secured by "thuggery" in this case, referring to the nominations of the Chicago convention.

"There was no allusion to the Chicago convention," he said.

"The allusions were specifically to what had been done in New York, Indianapolis and Denver. No such sentence as that included the word "thuggery" was used.

"What I stated was that such conventions as those in New York, Indianapolis and Denver were in no way representative or binding on republicans. I stand on what I said.

"Any story that does not come from me is a fake," Colonel Roosevelt said when he replied to a question that the managers of the National Roosevelt league had obtained an option on a hall in Chicago to hold a rump convention, if necessary. Alexander H. Revell, president of the league, also voiced his denial.

DONAGHEY IS DEFEATED.

Arkansas Governor, Up for Re-Election, Beaten by Robinson.

Little Rock, Ark., March 28.—Returns from yesterday's democratic primary received from the majority of districts throughout Arkansas indicate conclusively that Congressman Joe T. Robinson has defeated Gov. George W. Donaghey, who was a candidate for re-election. United States Senator Jeff Davis apparently leads his rival—S. Brundige—by a majority of at least 30,000.

CHINESE BALL TEAM HERE.

San Francisco, March 28.—The Chinese base ball team of Honolulu, all of them of unmixed Oriental blood, but claiming American citizenship by reason of Hawaiian birth, arrived here today on the liner Lurline for a six months' tour of this country.

Shortly before leaving the islands the Chinese won two games from the team of the cruiser West Virginia.

DOES DRAMATIC STUNT IN COURT

Miss Mercy Rises from Her Chair and Shouts at Witness.

VERACITY IN DOUBT

Chicago, March 28.—Abrahams, a southside furniture dealer, testifying for the defendant in the $100,000 suit of Miss Esther Mercy against Marion Talbot, dean of women at the University of Chicago, for alleged slander, said he would not believe Miss Mercy under oath.

The witness said he had known Miss Mercy for four years.

"What is her reputation for truth and veracity?" asked Attorney Walker.

"Bad."

"Would you believe her under oath?"

"No sir."

On cross examination Abrahams admitted having dealings with Miss Mercy and said he based his opinion as to her veracity on his business experience.

Miss Mercy caused some excitement by rising from her chair and shouting, "Look me in the face! Look me in the face!" when C. E. Zimmerman, engaged in the mail order business, was called to the witness stand. Zimmerman said he did not know the reputation of Miss Mercy for truth and veracity, but that Warren Reynolds' reputation for truthfulness was bad.

Judge Pomeroy excused the jury and cautioned Miss Mercy to refrain from making any further remarks to witnesses or others during the progress of the trial.

BAIL IS REFUSED.

Mrs. Pankhurst, Leader of Suffragettes, is Denied Freedom.

London, March 28.—Bail was refused in the case of Mrs. Pankhurst, the leader of the militant suffragettes. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence undertook to abstain from any further violence pending their trial at the Old Bailey sessions.

Mrs. Tuke, who is in ill-health, fainted during the hearing and was discharged from custody. The magistrate thought that the case against Mrs. Tuke was not nearly so strong as that against the other prisoners.

ANOTHER MAN IN THE OATES CASE

Judge Mungovan Thinks Girl's Arrest Was All Spite Work.

DRANK IN A SALOON

If Beulah Oates, seventeen, of Huntington, Ind., had not received the attentions of another fellow, it is likely that Sullivan Jacolette would not have been so anxious to recover a diamond ring from her and on this theory she was acquitted today in the city court of the charge of petit larceny.

It was shown in the testimony that Jacolette picked the girl up on the streets here, took her to a saloon, where he bought and drank with her four or five bottles of beer and became so confidential that he permitted her to take the ring.

Then he bought her a coat for $30, a silk waist for $4 and brought her to Fort Wayne and registered with her as man and wife. She abandoned him and went back home instead of making a trip to Chicago he had planned and then the other fellow got into the running and the affidavit against the girl followed.

The Other Cases.

Marfus Ehlard, plain drunk, was held until Tuesday; Clyde Stewart was fined $1 and costs, William Cook drew the same and Harry Roberts was let go with a warning.

The hearing of the case against John L. and Herman A. Tillman for throwing refuse from their saloon into the streets, was continued until tomorrow morning.

PARTIAL TICKET OF REPUBLICANS

Central Committeemen Get Together on Possible Candidates for Office.

WILL MEET APRIL 6

Republican central committeemen from the different precincts of the city, in session Wednesday night in the office of County Chairman Houk, selected a partial list of prospective candidates to be voted on at the primary election April 12. At another meeting to be held April 6, all arrangements for the primaries will be completed, and a complete list of candidates for the republican county slate will be announced.

The names of candidates were not officially announced at last night's meeting, but the committee spoke favorably of those presented and it is understood that all of the men are in the race. The list follows:

Coroner—Dr. Joseph E. Stults; commissioner for Second district, George H. Crouse; commissioner for Third district, Cornelius Gearin; judge of the circuit court, John Morris; representative, Daniel Miller; county recorder, W. H. Latourrette; governor, Judge Walter Olds; prosecuting attorney, W. C. Geake, C. W. Porter, Arthur W. Parry and D. Burns Douglas.

Four names were presented as possible candidates for the nomination for prosecuting attorney. More than three-fourths of the city committeemen were present and it was decided to personally consult with the men whose names have been favorably mentioned, asking them to file their certificates with the election commissioners at an early date.

Committeemen from all over the county, according to County Chairman Houk, desire it to be understood that the contestants in Allen county for delegates to the Indianapolis convention were not bitter to each other in any manner as to affect their working for whoever is nominated at the national convention in Chicago, or on the state or county tickets. It was agreed by the committeemen that whoever is nominated in Chicago will be supported by all.

At the meeting April 6 it will be definitely decided whether there will be a contest for delegates at the Auburn convention between the county Taft and Roosevelt factions.

Republican District Chairman Vesey states that he will spend no little effort in bringing the two republican factions in the district to some common understanding. He states that inasmuch as they are all republicans, they must get together.

"If they do this," said Mr. Vesey, "we stand a good show to elect our entire ticket."

Litman Issues Statement.

District Chairman Louis N. Litman, of the Roosevelt forces, has just issued the following statement:

"The Roosevelt organization in the Twelfth district will be actively continued until after the district convention in Auburn, April 23rd. The recent selection of delegates proves conclusively our former contention, that 80 per cent. of the republican voters of this district favor Mr. Roosevelt as their nominee for president, and the Roosevelt men must see that without fail two Roosevelt delegates are sent to the Chicago convention to represent the honest sentiment of a majority of our voters, in place of electing Taft delegates to misrepresent the sentiment.

"The most important thing that has ever happened in the history of the republican party is the way the voters—the rank and file of the republican party—came out to our primaries to support Mr. Roosevelt and the principles for which he stands.

"They came out in sufficient numbers to counteract the influence and efforts that were brought to bear by Taft politicians. The republican voters of the Twelfth district are to be complimented and congratulated."

REIGN OF MARTIAL LAW MAY BE EXTENDED.

dent from his pale face and nervous actions before going to the open air meeting he had called to be held in the public square at Moline.

"I'm going over there to make that talk in spite of anything those people may say," he said. "To be absolutely frank, I don't expects to come back uninjured. But it will be in the interest of a good cause if I am hurt."

Meeting is Uneventful.

The meeting was uneventful—disappointingly to some. The square was packed with men and women who went to see some exciting outbreak rather than hear McCaskrin's campaign speech. The candidate for state's attorney spent fifteen minutes denouncing wealthy tax dodgers and then adjourned his meeting.

Probably no attache of the city hall has more reason to be proud of his or her action today than has Miss Velma Hickman, who acts in the capacity of stenographer, deputy mayor and chief advisor of the city executive. During the morning while all sorts of threats were being made against city officials and the occupants of the city hall, Miss Hickman sat in her accustomed place at front window of the building working at her desk.

She was occupying this position in the building when a bullet crashed through a window and tore a fragment from the wall a few feet from Mayor Schriver's head.

"I guess it was an accident," said Mayor Schriver. "I think some national guard was cleaning his gun and it went off accidentally," said the mayor.

"I don't see any reason to be nervous," said Miss Hickman when asked if she was going to continue to occupy her place at the window in the mayor's office. "I know that nobody is going to shoot me."

Then, just to show that she was in earnest, she sat in the same seat and took a statement at the mayor's dictation.

AUTO-CHEMICAL STOOD ROAD TESTS IN EXCELLENT SHAPE.

Plowing through the deepest mud the board of safet ycould find Monday afternoon the new auto-chemical just installed at engine house No. 3 indicated that it has all the speed and power necessary to go any place in the city limits to reach a fire and that it will not be delayed by heavy going.

There are felt brake shoes on the machine now and the board of public safety is afraid they will slip, and iron will be substituted. The machine is heavy and will be driven fast and every precaution is being taken to avoid accidents. It will be necessary to stop quickly and to know the brakes will hold.

Fifteen men were on the machine at the time the test was made, aggregating about 2,200 pounds and this did not seem to bother the new fire fighter one bit. It carried the load easily. Mayor Jesse Grice, Members J. C. Hultzel, Marion B. Johnson and W. D. Henderson, of the board of public safety and members of the fire department headed by Assistant Chief George Jasper made the trip.

The machine cost $3,050 and can carry in addition to 200 feet of chemical hose, fifteen hundred feet of the standard siez. It replaces the old horse-drawn machine that has been in service many years.

LOCAL MEN GIVE AID TO Y. W. C. A.

Have Agreed to Make Up Additional Funds If Shortage is Experienced.

WILL CLOSE THE DEAL

A meeting of the building committee of the Young Women's Christian association is in session this afternoon at the association home on West Berry street, and final arrangements was made for the purchase of the Moderwell homestead on West Wayne street, immediately adjoining the new building site of the association.

Some doubt was entertained by the officers of the association as to whether or not they could meet the expense of buying additional property. All fear from this source was dispelled when ten local men, whose names are withheld, gallantly guaranteed to make up the additional money if the association building fund runs short.

In buying the Moderwell property, with a frontage of fifty feet, and selling the east 35 feet of the present site to the school city, the Y. W. C. A. will have a frontage of 116 feet on West Wayne street for its 78 foot building. The deal is to be consummated for the purpose of not crowding the public library, and also in order to secure adequate light for both the library and the new Y. W. C. A. home, which will be built this summer.

OFFERS A SUGGESTION.

Editor Sentinel: Let us have Mr. Comincavish explain to the councilmen tonight why he favored issuing $200,000 worth of bonds eleven years ago for the benefit of the Wabash railroad, and why he is now opposed to the bond issue for the ground and the banks along our rivers for parks, picnic grounds, etc., for the people.

DO-SOMETHING CLUB.

A huge map of Indiana, showing all of the traction facilities in the state, is being hung in the main waiting room of the new interurban terminal on West Main street. TROUSSEAU AT $108; HEART PANGS HIGHER.

Anderson, Ind., March 28.—Mention of a trousseau valued at $108 and heart pangs estimated at $10,000 comprise the two principal clauses in a breach of promise suit filed by Miss Florence Wilding, age 21, against William Kauf, aged 30, a wealthy farmer near Belleville, Ohio. Miss Wilding says she also gave up a position to be ready for the marriage.

In Oct., 1911, Miss Wilding alleges Kauf suggested she resign her position and prepare for the wedding, and about Jan. 1st they agreed on Jan. 17 as the date. Many invitations to relatives were issued and they gathered to witness the ceremony, but Kauf failed to appear.

In Canada's cold the president of the British Geographical Association sees a valuable immigration filter. The occasional 35 degrees below zero, he declares, will keep out all blacks and most settlers from southern Europe thus insuring the development of a strong northern race.

REWARD FOR HER CARE OF FATHER

William Moellering Gives Daughter $3,500 in His Last Will.

ESTATE IS DIVIDED

Under the will of the late William Moellering, probated in the circuit court today, Mrs. Clara Doehrmann, a daughter, will receive $3,500 for the care bestowed upon her father and mother during their declining years.

This is in addition to an equal share of the estate, which is to be divided after the payment of this and some other special bequests. Mr. Moellering left $2,000 to the Lutheran Hospital association and the same amount to the congregation of St. Paul's Lutheran church. The money given to the church is to be retained and kept at interest until it can be applied upon the erection of a new school building.

A son-in-law, Rev. Henoch Schroeder, is given $6,000 to be held and given to his children in only such amounts and at such times as he sees fit. Fifteen hundred dollars is left in trust for Carl Doehrmann, son of Mrs. Clara Doehrmann, for the purpose of providing for his education.

The remainder of the estate is to be divided into nine equal shares and is to be given to William F., Henry F., Charles E. and Edward H. Moellering, Wilhelmina Lange, Sophie Gerberding, Matilda Wehner, and Clara Doehrmann, his children, and William F. Burger, a grandson. These shares are all subject to deductions for advances made to the beneficiaries.

The will was made following the death of Mrs. Moellering and is dated October 8, 1910, and William F. Moellering is made administrator.

The will of Louise Mertens was also probated and her property is left to her husband, Frederick Mertens, during his life and to his children at his death.

His hands and feet were badly burned, he says, and his nervous system shocked so that he is unable to work at any occupation that will yield him a living. A. E. Houk and Leonard, Rose & Zollars filed the action.

WOMEN VOTE FOR FIRST TIME.

Take Active Part in Bond Issue Election in San Francisco.

San Francisco, March 28.—Women exercised their newly-won franchise for the first time in the city's history today in the civic center bond issue election.

About sixty women sat as election officers. Their zeal in their new duties proved a pleasant surprise to the registrar. One of them, upon being sworn, told him that she knew the four page pamphlet of instructions by heart.

The election concerns the issue of $8,800,000 bonds to erect a city hall and other public buildings, among them a court house and a $1,000,000 auditorium to be built by the world's fair company and later to revert to the people.

Kendallville, Ind., March 26.—Lemuel Adams, aged 73 years, who was a soldier in the war of the rebellion, and a resident of this city since the early 60's, met almost instant death yesterday when his neck was broken as the result of a fall from a wagon.

He had been working at the barn of Judson Decker and had started to drive away when he fell. Dr. N. J. Shook, the family physician, was summoned but before his arrival the unfortunate man expired. The ambulance was called and the body was taken to the late residence, 608 North Railroad street.

Mr. Adams was a member of Company K, Seventh New Jersey regiment, and also a member of Company D, 22nd regiment Veteran Reserve corps. A number of years ago he was employed on the farm of Louis A. Two years ago his wife suffered a stroke of paralysis and has been practically helpless ever since. She is now confined to her bed.

THE TEST OF MERIT

Fort Wayne People Are Given Convincing Proof.

No better test of any article can be made than the test of time and this is particularly true of a kidney medicine. Doan's Kidney Pills have stood this test and stood it well. What better proof of the merits of this remedy could you demand than the statement of a Fort Wayne resident who has been cured and has stayed cured?

Read the following:

George Frey, of 1235 Maumee street, Fort Wayne, Ind., says: "I never found another remedy of such great merit as Doan's Kidney Pills. My kidneys were weak and my back pained me intensely. In a short time after I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Meyer Bros. Co.'s Drug Store, my trouble was corrected and I enjoyed much better health." (Statement given December 3, 1908.)

Re-endorsement.

On July 1, 1910, Mr. Frey said: "Since I took Doan's Kidney Pills I have had little or no trouble from my kidneys. It always gives me pleasure to make the merits of this remedy known."

MAY BE MARRIED BUT FACT NOT KNOWN

Hartford City People Puzzled Over Escapade of Orlando Sipe and Hazel Clapper.

Hartford City, Ind., March 26.—No word has been received to substantiate the rumored marriage of Orlando Sipe, aged 61 years, and his former bookkeeper, Miss Hazel Clapper, aged 17 years, with whom he is reported to have eloped last Friday, but postcards received from the couple establish the fact that both are in Windsor, Canada.

Miss Clapper left this city last Friday ostensibly for Fort Wayne, where she was accompanied by her brother, Charles Clapper. A postcard received by Mrs. Henry Clapper, mother of the girl, stated that she was leaving Fort Wayne and expected to land in Canada last Saturday night. Sipe left the same day and is presumed to have joined Miss Clapper in the Allen county seat from which place they are reported to have gone to Michigan and were married, then continuing to Canada on their honeymoon. Postcards written in Windsor by Sipe were received here Wednesday, but no mention was made of his supposed marriage to his former bookkeeper.

When he left this city Sipe informed friends that he was going to Canada on a pleasure trip and to look at an automobile which he was contemplating buying.

CONTEST TO BE LIVELY.

Republican District Convention in Warsaw Tuesday.

Warsaw, Ind., March 26.—Next Tuesday the Thirteenth district republican convention will be held at the opera house in this city. The convention is for the purpose of naming two delegates to the republican national convention and also one presidential elector and one contingent presidential elector.

As the outcome of the caucuses, the last of which were held in the various counties of the district last Saturday, the Roosevelt forces have a small majority, but the Taft forces are strong and both sides will endeavor to control the convention.

Thus far three names have been mentioned as probable candidates for the honor of representing the district in the national body. It is understood that personally two of these are for Mr. Taft. One is Clem Studebaker, of St. Joe county, and the other is James Fox, of Laporte county. The only Roosevelt candidate thus far mentioned as one of the probabilities is Fred Keller, of St. Joseph county, the chairman of the central committee of that county.

HUNG HIMSELF TO TREE.

Suicide of B. F. Hull, Well Known Noble County Farmer.

Albion, Ind., March 28.—B. F. Hull, a well known farmer of Perry township, in this county, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself to a tree on his own farm, about four miles east of Ligonier. He was at Ligonier in the forenoon on business, but had returned home. When he did not appear at dinner members of the family started out to find him. He was found hanging to a tree in the woods. Despondency because of poor health is thought to have been the cause for his act.

Mr. Hull was fifty years old and had been a resident of this county for the greater part of his life. He was the local representative of the Elkhart Mutual Fire Insurance company. Although never an officeholder, Mr. Hull had been a candidate for several different offices. He is survived by the widow and several children.

HE WILL BAR MINORS.

Violating the Law Costs Columbia City Man $60.

Columbia City, Ind., March 28.—Harry Hartsock, who was arrested by Marshal Hull on five affidavits charging him with permitting minors to play pool in his place of business, appeared before Mayor Bloom Wednesday, through his attorney, D. V. Whiteleather, and pled guilty to three of the charges and was fined $10 and costs in each, the total amounting to $60. The other two cases by agreement were dismissed by the state. This now settles all the cases pending against Hartsock, and from what he states they will be the last that he will ever pay for, as in the future he will bar all minors from his place of business.

This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home

This recipe makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough—stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, croup, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the ntural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully.

A guaranty og absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you.

The Lyric is showing an Imp, "Tempted But True," a story of a country girl in a great city. King Baggot and Vivian Prescott have the principle parts. The other picture is "Fidelity," an American. A faithful husband accidentally kills a man. The sentence of the court consigns him to a long term in prison. The picture swings to the wife—alone, faithful, struggling to support herself and child and beset by an old-time suitor. The suitor nearly wins—and then something happens. What and how makes an exceptionally fine reel that will appeal strongly to your sympathies. Tonight Happy Clara Adams, coon shouter. Friday, a Rex, "Love's Four Stone Walls."

Uncle Sam's corn club for boys last year had 55,000 members. Each of these boys planted and harvested an acre of corn. Bennie Beeson, of Monticello, Miss., raised 227 bushels on his acre. The average yield per acre by men farmers, the country over, is almost twenty-eight bushels.

ORDER OF THE ROAD-ROLLERED.

Dispatches from Washington following the recent convention of Hoosier republicans at Indianapolis tell of a very cordial welcome extended by Congressman Boehne to Representative Lincoln Dixon, chief of the Roosevelt board of strategy, in the course of Mr. Dixon's rather forceful projection into the Order of the Road-Rollered. Congressman Boehne has evidently hit upon a very apt designation of a political state into which the man who toys with the fortunes of American politics must expect to occasionally find himself, and the phrase is one that will probably take rank with Colonel Roosevelt's Ananias club and other picturesque figures of speech that have come into popular use in the evolution of American politics into the game as it is played today.

Even the past masters in the art of driving the "road-roller" would scarcely bring mechanism of this character into action save in the most desperate political emergency, when it has been demonstrated that neither soft-pedal pleadings nor persuasive eloquence will win over the opposition, and when strategy has exhausted its efficacy in coping with a political extremity. Nor has any political party a patent upon the "road-roller." It is called into play in gatherings of a character wholly remote from the political realm, but its efficacy is as patent as a last resort in other fields, as in the political contingency when the majority invariably concludes that the minority is utterly impervious to reason.

Perhaps its compensating phase even for the victim lies in the fact that the agony is soon over. This has had two luminous illustrations in recent Indiana political events. Congressman Boehne has a suspicion that he felt its crushing power in his campaign for the gubernatorial nomination, and Mr. Lee is morally certain that he is not mistaken in the variety of the finish placed upon the Roosevelt contingent at Tuesday's convention. And there will be others. The Order of the Road-Rollered is a fraternity that is bound to grow, and sooner or later all those who play the political game strenuously and seriously will find themselves in it. The membership is already a rather illustrious one.

The unanimous renomination of Representative J. A. M. Adair by the democrats of the Eight congressional district at Winchester Tuesday was a merited recognition of the high-class services rendered the people of the Eighth district and the country at large by this able and conscientious member of the Indiana congressional delegation. A man of large affairs, Congressman Adair has given to his public trust the same conscientious endeavor that has builded his success in private life. The people of the Eighth district act wisely in recognizing conspicuous merit in public services, and in demonstrating that fact by this expression of continued confidence in Representative Adair.

Army officers are now testing motor trucks against the faithful old army mule at Fort Harrison, and it is beginning to be apparent that the mule is in danger of losing his occupation as a component part of the nation's defensive equipment. The boys in blue of years ago could never have been induced to pin their faith to anything with as many panicky eccentricities as the modern auto. The army mule came in for a full share of anathema on occasion, but his carburetter never failed to work.

The efficacy of the fire drill was again admirably demonstrated at Buffalo yesterday when one thousand boys and girls were marched out of a blazing building in perfect order and without a symptom of panic. The fire drill is a part of the school curriculum that should in no wise be neglected, and it ought to be not optional but obligatory.

Official figures show that 540 delegates will be necessary to nominate in the republican convention at Chicago this year—nearly one hundred more than were required four years ago. A glance at the score board at the present writing will doubtless convince both Colonel Roosevelt and Senator LaFollette that it will be necessary for them, in the rather inelegant but expressive slang of the day, to "go some," if they seriously expect to head off the present occupant of the white house in the race for the nomination.

Political differences are credited with having caused the disgraceful rioting at Rock Island, Ill., which at its very outset developed as net results three dead, a score of persons injured and a call for troops to protect the city from further violence. It is difficult to imagine any sort of political situation that will furnish a riot of this character as its logical sequence, but perhaps they have them over in Illinois.

The fact that Colonel Roosevelt was at first able to find no term stronger than "scandalous" as adequately descriptive of the methods used by the Taft machine in New York to capture the big majority of the delegates in Tuesday's primary might seem to indicate that Mr. Roosevelt is simmering down somewhat in his vocabulary of denunciation. But later he picked up somewhat, and was still coming strong when last heard from.

When it is remembered that the republicans of Indiana, outside of Marion county, sent a total of 656 Roosevelt delegates to the Indianapolis convention Tuesday as against 649 pledged to the president, the sentiment for Mr. Taft in Indiana can hardly be said to resemble an unanimous acclaim. It was Marion county that turned the scale Taftwise.

The Fort Wayne street-cleaning department is facing a magnificent opportunity to give a practical demonstration of its efficiency, and one which the public fondly hopes it will not be long in seizing.

NATIONAL DELEGATES.

(Indianapolis News.)

Whatever may be said of the present system of making presidential nominations it generally results in both parties sending representative men to national conventions. This is true as a rule of district delegates and particularly so of delegates-at-large. It always has been so. As long ago as 1860 the Indiana delegates to the democratic national convention at Charleston were: E. M. Huntington, Terre Haute; S. H. Buskirk, Bloomington; Robert Lowry, Goshen; James B. Foley, Greensburg; John S. Gavitt, Evansville; Smith Miller, Patoka; G. B. Norman, New Albany; S. K. Wolfe, Corydon; F. C. Dunning, Bloomington; H. W. Harrington, Madison; G. V. Bennusdaffer, Greensburg; John Anderegg, Lawrenceburg; Lafe Devlin, Cambridge City; Edmond Johnson, Newcastle; W. H. Talbot, Indianapolis; J. M. Gregg, Danville; E. Reed, Terre Haute; H. K. Wilson, Sullivan; L. B. Stockton, Lafayette; Isaac Elston, Crawfordsville; G. Hathaway, Laporte; S. A. Hall, Logansport; P. Hougland, Fort Wayne; G. W. O'Connell, Angola; William Carver, Noblesville; John R. Croffroth, Huntington. These names represent a past era in Indiana politics, but it was a strong delegation. The Charleston convention, after sitting several days, split, and the Indiana delegates, adhering to Douglas, followed his flag to Baltimore, where the "regulars" reconvened.

The Indiana delegates to the Chicago (republican) convention in 1860, that nominated Abraham Lincoln were, at large, William T. Otto, New Albany; Daniel D. Pratt, Logansport; Caleb B. Smith, Indianapolis; Pleasant A. Hackleman, Rushville. From the First district, James C. Veatch and Cyrus M. Allen; Second district, Thomas Slaughter, G. G. Butler; Third district, John R. Cravens, A. C. Vorhis; Fourth district, George Holland, A. S. Vater; Fifth district, Miles Murphy, Walter March; Sixth district, S. P. Oyler, John S. Bobbs; Seventh district, George K. Steele, D. C. Donohue; Eighth district, John Beard, J. W. Simms; Ninth district, Charles H. Test, D. H. Hopkins; Tenth district, George Moon, George Emerson; Eleventh district, William W. Connor, John M. Wallace. These also were representative men in their day, and many of them were prominent in state politics.

Among the delegate-at-large to the Chicago convention from other states were a number of men already of national prominence, or who became so afterward, as John A. Andrew and George S. Boutwell, from Massachusetts; Gideon Welles, from Connecticut; William M. Ekarts and Preston King, from New York; David Wilmot and Thaddeus Stevens, from Pennsylvania; David Davis and N. B. Judd, from Illinois; Frank Blair and Gratz Brown, from Missouri, and many others whose names have figured in history. In past years the republican delegates-at-large from Indiana to national conventions have included such names as Richard W. Thompson, Henry S. Lane, Walter Q. Gresham, Will Cumback, General Thomas M. Browne, Benjamin Harrison, John H. Baker, Albert G. Porter, Clem Studebaker, Stanton J. Peelle, General Lew Wallace and Charles W. Fairbanks. In the matter of delegates to national conventions both parties in Indiana have set a standard which they should not lower.

ARMED PROTECTION FOR THE COURT.

(Montgomery Advertiser.)

Chief Magistrate William McAdoo has ordered the uniformed attendants of all New York courts to carry arms in the future. The order was issued, the New York Herald says, because of "alarm at the possibility of the assassination of a police magistrate in the manner in which Judge Thornton L. Massie, District Attorney W. M. Foster and Sheriff Lee F. Webb met death in Hillsville."

In other words, a cool and deliberate judge in the greatest city of the country recognizes the danger of a public sentiment constantly fanned by attacks on all judges and all source of authority, on the part of men who benefit financially or politically by continued agitation. The action was taken by Chief Magistrate McAdoo after he had conferred with other magistrates, who agreed with him in recognizing the possibilities of a crowd of desperate men shooting up a court in New York, even as one was shot up in Virginia.

It is furthermore announced that the arming of the attendants at magistrates courts is expected, the Herald says, to revolutionize the protection of all other courts of the city. The movement is recognition not only of one element of danger from the criminal element, but from an abnormal state of public sentiment, reflected from the teachings that all public officials, including judges, are corrupt and that the only honest man is the voter.

It is encouraging to note, however, that leading newspapers throughout the country, and the soundest thinkers of America, have been aroused to the dangers of our institutions and are now aggressively combatting the theories that are subversive of our government and our society.

JEFFERSON ON COURTS.

(New York World.)

Perhaps the best and most philosophical estimates of the judiciary was made by Jefferson in 1792, before he had been prejudiced by a political quarrel:

"When a cause has been adjudged according to the rules and forms of the country, its justice ought to be presumed. Even error in the highest court which has been provided as the last means of correcting the errors of others, and whose decrees are therefore subject to no further revisal, is one of those inconveniences flowing from the imperfection of our faculties to which every society must submit; because there must be somewhere a last resort, wherein contestations may end. Multiply bodies of revisal as you please, their number must still be finite and they must finish in the hands of fallible men as judges."

This is really the final word in regard to the place of the judiciary under a republican form of government. There will always be good judges and bad judges; there will always be wise decisions and foolish decisions. Even if Mr. Roosevelt's scheme is adopted and the court of last resort is made to include all the voters, a 500,000-to-400,000 decision will arouse quite as much hostility as a 5-to-4 decision, and even more disastrously.

Any scheme for reforming the courts which contemplates more than the selection of better judges and the lessening of the law's delay is certain in the long run to produce more evil than good.

TELLS HOW HAVING GOLD AORTA FEELS

Man Who Underwent Marvelous Operation Able to Talk of It.

FELT WIRE COILING

New York, March 28.—Henry Griffin, the only man alive who has a golden wall to his aorta, is so far on the way to recovery from the marvelous operation which he underwent a week ago that he described the sensations to an American reporter in Bellevue hospital yesterday.

"I can't tell you just how it feels to have twelve feet of gold wire in me," he said with a smile. "I suppose it's almost a brand-new feeling in this world. I know the wire is there, and I still have a clear memory of feeling it coil round and round the artery while Dr. Lusk was operating.

Has Felt Worse Pain.

"I was conscious all the time. Pain? Well, I've known worse pain. A man who served nine years in the Indian country has had a lot more suffering than you get from an operation with doctors and nurses to take care of you in every way. Out with Crook and Miles we usually got hurt when we were alone, twenty-five miles from nowhere, with no one to help us but ourselves.

"I see some of the papers announced that I was dead. You can deny that for me. I'm every much alive and I'm going to be more alive every day. I've got to get to my wife and seven youngsters.

The patient's face took on a worried look at the mention of his family. Although they are over-joyed at the success of the operation, the mother and little ones are not supplied with funds to face any long absence of their breadwinner. They live at Fourth avenue and Avenue C, College Point, L. I.

How He Kept Up Courage.

Griffin said it was his memories of the old scouting days that kept up his courage through the long stay in the hospital. "Even while they were performing the operation," he said, "I kept my mind far away, following the old Fourth Cavalry in the chase after Geronimo. I was there when we caught him.

"It was surely a wonderful thing that Dr. Lusk did for me. Why, I am eating more and more very day, and I can breathe better—feel better all around."

The physicians are enthusiatic over the success of the operation, which was the second of its kind ever performed. Dr. William C. Lusk performed both these feats of surgery, and he is keeping constant watch over his patient now in Bellevue.

Men Who Helped to Make America

GENERAL JOHN SEVIER, the American pioneer, was born in Rockingham county, Va., September 23, 1745. He was not only a pioneer, but a soldier and statesman, and one of the founders of the republic.

After founding the town of Newmarket, in Shenandoah county, Va., and winning fame as an Indian fighter, he served as a captain in the Virginia line during Lord Dunmore's war.

In 1772 he removed to the Watauga colony, on the western slope of the Alleghanies, where he was one of the most prominent settlers. He was the first Governor of the so-called independent State of Franklin.

In 1787 Governor Caswell, of North Carolina, declared the Franklin government to be a revolt, subdued it and imprisoned Sevier, afterward ceding the region to the federal government.

After his release Sevier, whose record as the hero of King's Mountain was an enviable one, was made brigadier general of forces in the territory south of the Ohio. In 1790 he was elected as first Representative in Congress from the Mississippi Valley.

GENERAL JOHN SEVIER

General Sevier was the first Governor of Tennessee, elected five times thereafter to that place; was four times elected to Congress, and hero of King's Mountain.

John Sevier was essentially a citizen, home loving, law abiding, cultivating the arts of peace, a man deserving the proud title that history conferred upon him—a Builder of Commonwealths. He was not a soldier of fortune, yet thirty-five battles, thirty-five victories—that is the record of the famous pioneer-statesman, John Sevier. They were battles fought on the frontier of American civilization, victories won in the face of every obstacle that it is the pioneer's glory to overcome.

He died near Fort Decatur, Ga., September 24, 1815.

HITS HARD IN HIS "FIGHTING SPEECH"

Roosevelt at Chicago Turns Withering Fire on Taft Machine Methods in Indiana and New York.

Chicago, March 28.—Tactics employed by Taft machine in the Indiana convention and the New York primaries Tuesday were denounced by Theodore Roosevelt in his address here last night as "brutal defiance of decency." In his scheduled address, "Charter of Business Prosperity," Colonel Roosevelt advocated closer supervision of the trusts, but he closed with a scathing attack on Joseph B. Kealing, of Indianapolis, and the New York leaders, who, he declared, had thrown out Roosevelt delegates and reversed the will of the people.

A great part of the address, however, was devoted to a bitter discussion of the selection Tuesday of national delegates in the Empire and Hoosier states, upon which the traditional balance of power was expected to hinge.

Denounces Machine Frauds.

"The fundamental issue in this fight," he declared, "is an issue of honesty, decency, fair play. Have the people the right to rule? Have the masses of the republican party, the rank and file, the plain people in whom Abraham Lincoln trusted, the right to express their will as to who the nominee for president shall be? Or, are they to be bullied and defrauded out of that right, and is the nomination to be intrusted to the representatives of political and financial privilege, the representatives of the powers of pillage, the men who, with the backing of big crooked business work through the lowest kind of political machinery and count on the silence or support of every newspaper that is owned or controlled by, or directly or indirectly responsive to, those great financial powers that work in the darkness?"

Declares Tactics "Infamous."

Colonel Roosevelt said that in many parts of the country the opposition was counting for success on "methods which I can only characterize as infamous." He asserted that President Taft had committed himself to the doctrine of the rule of the people by "a representative part of the people."

"The president's political fortunes," he continued, "are now committed to the political machines in the various states which are led and controlled by men like Mr. Tawney in Minnesota, Mr. Kealing in Indiana, Mr. Penrose in Pennsylvania, Mr. Ballinger in Washington, Messrs. Barnes and Koenig in New York, Mr. Gallinger in New Hampshire, Messrs. Guggenheim and Evans in Colorado, Mr. Aldrich in Rhode Island, Mr. Cox in Ohio and Mr. Lorimer in Illinois. These are the men, who, when his theory is translated into actual practice, actually appears as that 'representative part' of the people which is to govern all the rest of the people."

Col. Roosevelt then turned to the primary election in New York yesterday to substantiate his charges. He referred to Samuel Koenig, chairman of the New York county republican committee, as a "figurehead" and said he was "simply doing the bidding of the stronger men behind him, some of those stronger men appearing in the open and others being the big sinister figures that are never seen in the light of day.

Roosevelt Inspectors Barred.

"Before the election took place," the speaker continued, "I denounced it as a criminal farce, because, under the wicked law which had been thrust upon New York by the machines of the two parties, Mr. Koenig had been given the right to name all the inspectors at the primary election in the county of New York, and had already used that right to throw out over 100 of the inspectors simply because it was known that they were supporting the Roosevelt ticket. Every inspector kept was an anti-Roosevelt man. Now, I ask you yourselves to think what such conduct means.

Kealing Machine Flayed.

"What was done in New York is substantially what was done in Indiana and in Colorado. Against all the money, all the patronage, all the efforts of the Kealing machine in Indiana, with nothing but the plain people of the state to rely upon, we carried the state convention handsomely, and then, by fraudulent action, which can only be called brutal in its utter defiance of decency, nearly 200 delegates were thrown out and the will of the people reversed. Then men honestly elected, of course, declined to abide by the result and held a separate convention. They would have been derelict in their duty had they not done so, for the Kealing-Taft state delegation in Indiana does not represent the people at all, and its actions are in no shape or way representative of or binding on the rank and file of the republican party in Indiana.

"In my speech at Columbus I tried to develop two main lines of thought, first, that the people have the right to rule, and that through the exercise of this right we must obtain social and industrial justice, and, second, that our aim must be to control business—not to strangle it.

"The three great classes of the American community are the farmers, the wage-earners, and the business men, big and little, wholesale and retail. It is essential that all three shall prosper. It is essential that there shall be a more equitable division of prosperity than has been the case in the past. This prosperity can only be lasting if it is based on justice, and it cannot be based on justice unless the small man, the farmer, the mechanic, the wage-worker generally, the clerk on a salary, the small business man, the retail dealer, have their rights guaranteed. If those men have their rights guaranteed, then they shall prosper, and the prosperity will extend to the big man. Fundamentally, our opponents who say they are for prosperity differ from us in wishing to see the prosperity come to the big man first and then drip down through to the little man. Now I am just as anxious to see the big man prosper as they are, but I do not believe that he can prosper in any really enduring manner unless under conditions which ensure to the small men their fair chance. In short, as regards prosperity, there are two things to remember, first, that there must be a division of prosperity so that all shall benefit, and second that there can be no such division of prosperity unless the prosperity is there to divide.

A Curious Combine.

"It is curious to see how often the extremists on both sides combine against the sane and moderate men who are striving to fight a real battle for justice. I use the word 'moderate' advisedly for the violent self-styled conservative is just as wild an extremist as the most violent of the self-styled extreme radicals. At the present day the reactionary who wishes that the great corporations shall remain absolutely unbridled finds his most effective ally in the make-believe extremist who desires to pose as the ultra-enemy of the trusts. The small business man and the honest big business men are alike interested in securing a definite, settled and clearly defined governmental policy about business. The great law-breaking trust, on the other hand, objects much more to a definite and clearly-settled policy of governmental control than he does to the policy of make-believe extinction; and therefore he hails with sardonic pleasure the attitude of the extremist who is always declaiming about his intention of killing all the trusts; for the trust magnate knows that this particular kind of agitator will not kill the trusts at all and will as a matter of fact accomplish nothing whatever except to divert attention from the real remedies which would cure the evil.

Chaos Cannot Continue.

"Our present policy of chaos cannot permanently continue. It hurts us at home, and it impairs our chance to get our proper share of foreign commerce. We are giving about seventy-five per cent of our time to fighting among ourselves about ourselves, and only about twenty-five per cent to promoting our foreign trade. When we act in this manner we may be sure that we shall suffer in competition with such an admirably organized international rival as for instance Germany, where the conditions are exactly the reverse. Now I have unlimited faith in the energy, initiative and common sense of our business men, and I have no fear for the result if they are placed in fair competition with any foreign competitors. But we ourselves must make the conditions fair if they are to have a decent chance. To do so we must get before them an accurate chart of what they can do and what they cannot do in the business world. We must endeavor to encourage legitimate and honest business, and at the same time war against business crookedness and injustice. There should be absolute clearness of the law; there should be a competent administrative body, an inter-state industrial commission or something of the kind, which would do for the world of industrial production what the interstate commerce commission is doing for the world of industrial transportation. The effort to do this work through law suits and by courts has proved a flat failure. What is necessary is administrative work. The creation of a commerce court in dealing with interstate commerce has been a step backward, not a step forward. It has represented the undoing of some of the good work that has been done in interstate commerce; and we must not repeat the mistake.

Would Do Full Justice.

"I want to do full justice to the big business man, but I also want to do full justice to the small business man, and the middle-sized business man. It should be the policy of the government clearly to define and punish wrong doing, to give in advance full information to every man just what he can and what he cannot legally do. But with the big business man there is need for especial precautions which are unnecessary as regards the small business man. The people of this country are not afraid of the mere size of a business enterprise provided it is honestly organized and honestly managed. But they feel that such size carries with it a potentiality of wrong doing that makes it necessary that the nation and, if necessary the states shall exercise over big business a control and supervision which are unnecessary as regards small business. It is of the utmost consequence that we shall get permanent business prosperity, and it can only be permanent if it is on a safe basis, and it can only be on a safe basis if there is effective governmental control of big business including the issue and the sale of stocks and bonds so as to prevent all such evils as over-capitalization and the flagrant abuse of power by exploiting the business interests of the people for the personal gain of the few. Remember that 'water' in stocks means unjust taxation of innocent people in order to get dividends. I call this unjust taxation; it could be called by a much harsher name, did I not wish to speak moderately; for this unjust taxation, this extortion, is practiced at the expense alike of innocent stockholders and of the great outside public of consumers. It is hard to overestimate the widely ramifying damage of this, as of all other kinds, of business corporation.

Not Matter of Theory.

"Now I am not speaking as a matter of theory, I am speaking in view of what has actually happened in connection with the utter failure of the suits against the tobacco trust and the Standard Oil trust to accomplish a result of real worth. It is not my purpose at this time to discuss the action of the government in acquiescing in that decision in its final form, or to try to apportion the responsibility for this utter failure. The net result has been that the tobacco trust and the Standard Oil trust materially increased the value of their stocks, and that there has been no diminution of their power to control markets. According to the press reports, the market price of Standard Oil stock is increased over two hundred millions of dollars from the time of the supreme court's decision, and the price of oil has gone up during the same period. In Wall street I am informed that the only difference noticeable is that speculators who used to receive from their brokers a single bit of paper representing ownership of oil stock now receive an envelope containing twenty or thirty bits of paper representing nominally different certificates of nominally different companies.

Is Powerless Alone.

"In my messages to congress, and in my speeches while president, I again and again pointed out that the anti-trust law by itself, and without such additional legislation as I then outlined and have since outlined, could not do anything of permanent value. The result has exactly and precisely justified what I then said. And mind you, at that time, the extreme reactionaries and the self-styled extreme radicals joined hands to prevent the getting of the legislation that I asked. The senate committee unanimously voted against making any changes in the anti-trust law. The nominal radicals of the kind that are at this moment most frantic in their denunciation of the trusts took the same position that was taken by the re-actionaries; for the frantic extremists wished to pose as the irreconcilable enemies of all trusts, and the reactionaries and standpatters know that my proposal did really propose an effective device to regulate big business, and did really contain a menace to every law-breaking trust, and did really hold out hope for the people, whereas, the violent extremists frighten the trusts hardly at all, but do frighten honest business men. The anti-trust law causes a great many honest business men at present grave concern, and it especially causes concern to honest retail men and men of small means who try to join together to protect themselves against big trusts. But it does not frighten the big trusts. They see what has happened to the tobacco trust and the Standard Oil trust. They know that these trusts have been given immunity baths, and are stronger than they ever were before. The anti-trust law should not only be kept on the statute books but should be strengthened and made more effective against trusts guilty of anti-social practices; but the real good, the greatest good, will have to come through totally different legislation modelled in part upon that which has worked so well in connection with our national banks and in connection with interstate commerce.

Has Failed to Control.

"The effort to strangle big business according to the methods of the extremists has only been successful to the extent of alarming all business, and has failed completely as regards adequate controlling the very kinds of big business which it is necessary most to control. Four months ago, in a statement I made entitled 'The Trusts, the People and the Square Deal,' I reiterated the position I had taken as president in this matter, which is the same position that I now outline. At that time Wall street was for the moment very much frightened over the recently decided Standard Oil and tobacco trust cases. For the moment Wall street, though its newspaper organs, and other representatives, seemed prepared to support the policy I advocated for honest and efficient control, rather than to see ruin come to both good and bad business. But Wall street has changed its mind. The representatives of the worst kind of big business have now concluded that the Standard Oil and tobacco trusts were really benefited by the decision. These men, whose views are given utterances to by certain great New York dailies, care nothing for honest business or for the welfare of the community. They want immunity in doing their own work, and it is evident that they prefer a continuance of the present policy of destruction which they know to be a sham rather than to see the inauguration of the policy of real control which I advocated, a control which would correct evils and yet promote prosperity.

Favors Ordered Control.

"It is curious to see the worst of the big business interests and the least wise of the extremist agitators playing into one another's hands in trying to preserve the present system of chaos in business law in preference to a system of ordered supervision and control under which we would secure definiteness of legal policy for all business and would guarantee to big business proper treatment as an incident to exacting proper behavior from it. I believe that honest big business men and little business men alike will favor this control when they realize the good it will bring, and I believe that the most far-sighted among them now favor it. But it is being opposed by the great New York dailies which speak for Wall street, and by the newspapers which echo their views in other parts of the country, because they would rather run the risk of sacrificing the general prosperity than see a thorough control of the big business that most needs that control.

Duty of Government.

"It is the duty of the federal and state governments each in its own sphere at once to begin a policy of supervising the organization and management of big corporations so as to make it possible for small investors to participate safely in the ownership of shares and stock in all corporations which are subject to governmental control. There is at present a gigantic capitalization of stocks and bonds upon which the American people pay from their earnings whatever annual interest and dividends are paid, and the American people should have the government guaranty of the honesty of that for which they thus pay. The federal and state governments can if they wish work harmoniously together in a fair and honest effort to protect the people in this fashion. As president I asked congress to secure the same governmental control of all big business, including railroads and transportation companies, which is now being exercised over national banks. In the case of the banks, the government knows and directs every detail of management. The application of these principles (with whatever variation the special needs may require) to all classes of big business under competent administrative direction would be more effective in protecting the rights of the people against the rapacity and greed of the trusts and monopolies than all the decisions rendered by the courts during the past twenty years. There should be publicity, that is, there should be broad daylight in all big business, including every form of monopolistic trade, and the federal and state governments should be able to control them just as they control national banks, just as we are now beginning with reasonable effectiveness to control railroads.

"We must achieve a permanent prosperity based on justice, a prosperity which must come by the wise and resolute effort to control business under clearly defined and definite law, by administrative work under the law. We must not pin our faith only to a succession of law suits, which, under pretense of strangling big business, punish real offenders inadequately, or positively benefit them as in the cases of the Standard Oil and tobacco trusts, and are at the same time a constant source of anxiety and alarm to honest business men whose anxiety is to find out the law and then live up to it."

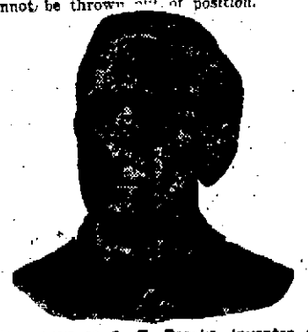
Don't Wear A Truss!

Ten Reasons Why You Should Send for My New Appliance.

I Send It On Trial.

It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.

The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.



The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who has been curing others for over 30 years. If ruptured, write him today.

Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.

Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in trusses it is not cumbersome or ungainly.

It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.

The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.

There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.

All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Remember, I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

WOMAN'S BEAUTY

Dr. Parker in "Woman's Journal."

The subject of beauty is a never ending source of interest to womankind and rightly so. Real beauty lies in being healthy, and health is a matter of correct metabolism, which means that the chemical process (which begins with life and ends with death) of the renewal of cells, tissues and blood and the elimination or waste of same must be in accord.

If the metabolism be wrong it is manifested by nervous ills, but particularly by aenemia. The thin, colorless, bloodless woman or girl is never happy or beautiful. Aenemia brings with it a long train of feminine ills which depletes the nervous system and detracts from personal magnetism and charm.

The pink cheeked, red lipped, sparkling eyed plump girl or woman is filled with personal magnetism. Such a one is charming and wins love and friendship where the one of ill health is sometimes shunned. Metabolism may be restored, the body and nerves built up and health, beauty and happiness regained by the simple act of drinking twice daily for a few weeks and thereafter two or three times a week, a fluid found by a German chemist and which is known to physicians as metabolinum. It contains no alcohol or narcotic drugs and is purely a nerve food drink which restores the correct metabolism. Rather too expensive though, for the poor who need it most, it is consumed in the larger cities by actors, actresses, singers, musicians, society people and all of that class who must depend upon strong nerves and their beauty for success. The price never is considered by such as these. A pint of the concentrated metabolinum when diluted with water makes more than a gallon, and one dollar and twenty-five cents is paid for this amount. Its prompt action on the metabolism of the system makes it popular. I feel free to recommend it to all who are nervous, aenemic, thin and wasting with various ills, because it is never advertised and has undoubted virtue as a builder and tonic. In most large cities the leading pharmacist carries it to supply physicians' prescriptions. However, anyone can obtain it, as it contains nothing harmful.

WOMEN WITH POLICE POWER.

South Bend to Have Patrol Woman and a Matron.

South Bend, Ind., March 28.—South Bend will not only have a woman police officer in the near future, but a woman matron with police power will be stationed in the union traction station, for the protection of women and girls, if an agitation launched by the women's clubs of the city bears fruit. The club members are so determined the plan shall go through they have expressed their willingness to employ a matron and pay her out of the club treasuries, if the city or railway companies can not be induced to hire some one. The woman police officer will have similar duties on the down town streets. In connection with the agitation, the city council recently passed an ordinance against flirting.

WANTS WOMEN TO FARM.

Instructor in State University Delivers Lecture on Subject.

Berkeley, Cal., March 28.—Back to the farm was the advice given by Prof. E. B. Babcock, of the agricultural department, to the women students of the State university in his lecture on "Vocational Opportunities for Women."

Too few women, he said, were interested in agricultural pursuits, but the twenty now enrolled in the farmers' courses seemed encouraging. Forestry, floriculture, stock raising and landscape gardening were promising careers for women, according to the speaker.

Some Silhouettes of the Sidewalk

The Flagman.

HERE the car lines interlace,
North and south and east and west,
Is the busiest sort of place.
And the flagman gets no rest.
He is there when dawn is gray,
And when sunset skies are red;
There at nighttime, there by day—
Does he never go to bed?
Cars go up and cars go down,
Cars go crosstown either way,
Some come up, then swing aroun',
Moving every sort of way.
How he keeps the whole thing straight
Is a mystery past belief.
He's a wonder! Ain't it great
That the cars don't come to grief?

How he works! He's never still!
Rightly he holds one arm
With the white flag steady till
Certain cars pass without harm.
And, while one arm thus is held,
With the other he waves fast
The red flag with danger spelled
Till some other car goes past.

'Tis not only cars that wait
For his flags to point the ways—
He must keep the autos straight
And direct the carts and drays.

Traffic starts when he commands—
When he waves the traffic stops;
And, with flags in both his hands,
He sustains the traffic "cops."

If he got a holiday,
Through some kind, benignant powers,
Don't you wonder in what way
He would spend the golden hours?
But he'd seek some corner, where
Some poor fellow flagman stays,
Just to see the fellow there
Keep the street cars on their ways.

Mi-o-na Banishes Indigestion, Sourness, Gas and Heaviness

Promptly Stops Fermentation and Every Form of Stomach Distress, or Your Money Back.

Millions of people have been cured by using MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets and now have strong stomachs, capable of digesting the heartiest meals.

Millions of others continue to suffer from indigestion even though MI-O-NA is guaranteed or money back.

Millions suffer from distressed stomach, acid stomach, belching of sour food, a miserable heaviness at pit of stomach even though MI-O-NA is guaranteed or money back.

Millions parade a foul breath, display a dull eye, stand for attacks of biliousness and dizziness even though MI-O-NA is guaranteed or money back.

Many get so narrow and irritable from fermentation of food in stomach and the action of poisonous stomach gases that they have headache regularly, have bad dreams nightly and become despondent and unfit for active work.

And still MI-O-NA is guaranteed to end all these troubles or money back.

What excuse have these people for suffering, when MI-O-NA, the universal stomach prescription can be had in tablet form for 50 cents a large box? At Meyer Bros. Co., Four Drug Stores, and druggists everywhere.

There is only one excuse, the old worn out, banged, battered and torn excuse—the excuse of the undeveloped—the excuse of the childish, the weak and the mentally deficient.

Just because—just because; that's the excuse, that's why they don't get MI-O-NA and win back energy, vim, vigor, vitality and a perfect stomach—Just because—it's a poor old decrepit excuse, but to some people it's better than none.

To all intelligent people we simply say that MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets only cost 50 cents a large box and are sold on money back if dissatisfied plan.

The committee on transportation and arrangements for the "pilgrimage" of Mizpah Temple, of this city, to Los Angeles, Cal., to attend the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine, has completed its work and announces that it has made arrangements for a special train from this city for the patrol and the band and their friends. The train will consist of three and possibly four Pullman sleeping cars, a chair car and a baggage car. It will leave Fort Wayne at 2:05 Wednesday afternoon, May 1, over the Nickel Plate, arrive at Chicago at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. It will leave the latter city at 7 o'clock in the evening over the Santa Fe, and reach Los Angeles at 8:45 Sunday evening, May 5. MECHANICAL STOKERS PERFECT.

Six in Use Here Give 100 Per Cent Performance.

The mechanical stoker for use on locomotives is a success and as rapidly as possible all the passenger locomotives on the Pennsylvania will be equipped with them. Six of the large K-2-A engines on the Western division are already thus equipped and according to the reports of the engineers who handle these engines, the stokers are giving a "100 per cent. performance." This means that the fires have been kept up by the stokers without "hand firing" by the firemen. At the end of each trip over the sub-division, the engineer on the stoker equipped locomotive fills out a report giving the average steam pressure, the lowest steam pressure, number of times the firemen shakes the grates, the numbr of times he uses the hook and the per centage of firing done by the stoker. The latter is usually 100 per cent. which means that it worked perfectly at all times. The stokers in use on this division are known as the F. D. Crawford pattern.

OPENS SCHOOL HERE.

Pennsylvania Rebuilt Air Brake Car Finished.

The work of rearranging, repairing and repainting the Pennsylvania air brake car is finished and next week Captain H. M. Diehl, the air brake instructor, will have the car brought down to a point near the shop power house and commence instructing the employes in the use and care of air brakes in the train service. Captain Diehl said he would remain here until every person who is required to know something about air brakes has had opportunity to get the desired information. This will consume six or eight weeks. Then school will be opened elsewhere on the Pennsylvania lines.

BLOCKED TRAFFIC AWHILE.

Interstate Commission Orders Locomotives to Shops.

As a result of an investigation carried on by a representative of the interstate commerce commission in Wabash, several locomotives on the Michigan division of the Big Four were condemned and ordered in the shops to receive repairs before they were allowed to go back in service. The action left the division short of motive power, and a congestion of freight cars at points along the division has followed.

DEATH RECALLS SAD ACCIDENTS.

In its notice of the death of Charles Ault, a Pennsylvania employe who died last Monday and was interred at Ossian, the Bluffton News revives memory of a sad accident a few years ago, in which the parents of the deceased figured. The News in part says: "The father of Charles Ault was killed on the Nickel Plate bridge over the St. Mary's river in Fort Wayne three years ago and his mother lost a leg in the same accident. They were returning home from church when it happened. John Ault, a brother of the deceased, was killed about twelve years ago by a Clover Leaf train east of Decatur, while he was engaged as night watchman at the bridge."

WABASH RELIEF GROWING.

At the meeting of the Wabash Relief association Tuesday night, the secretary's report for the first quarter of the year showed the finances to be in good shape. A representative of the Marshall Field company is out on the Lake Shore lines, taking measurements for uniforms for the train men and station attendants. He was here Tuesday, leaving Wednesday morning. Supt. M. L. Reynolds and Trainmaster W. O. Sterns were here also Tuesday night.

As a result of injuries received in a head-on collision on the Nickel Plate at Vermillion, May 27, 1911, George Halak became and still believes he is surrounded by wreckage, blood and dying persons, according to a petition for damages filed in the Cuyahoga county common pleas court at Cleveland yesterday. Halack lived at Castalia. After the wreck he was taken to Cleveland and later was sent to the Newburg state hospital. The petition in which his guardian asks $10,000 of the railroad said he was made hopelessly insane by the injuries he received.

NO VOLCANO UNDER CANAL.

Washington, March 28.—An explanation of the mysterious emission of steam and hot gases from the crevices in the famous Culebra cut, which gave rise to a report that a volcano existed under the Panama canal zone, is given by the canal record, just received from Panama.

It is declared that the phenomena is attributed entirely to the oxidizations of iron pyrites caused by exposure to the air, and that the temperature developed disappears in the course of a few days after the pyrites are uncovered.

A Home Recipe for Wrinkled, Saggy Skin

(From Beauty and Health.)

The famous saxolite lotion recommended by beauty specialists for removing wrinkles and for reducing distended pores, can be made at home. Ask your druggist for saxolite in powdered form, 1 oz., and ½ pint witch hazel. Dissolve the powder in the witch hazel and bathe the face, neck and hands in the solution. Results are remarkable, and instantaneous. The skin tightens, and this naturally reduces the wrinkles, as well as creases or folds about the neck, cheeks or hands. The tissue beneath the skin also becomes firmer and more solid.

One feels much refreshed and exhilarated after using this truly wonderful preparation. Its continued use for only a short time makes one look five or ten years younger.

STEPHENSON IS TO RETAIN SEAT

By Vote of 40 to 34 Senate Gives Wisconsin Man Vindication.

CLEARED OF CHARGES

Washington, March 28.—Senator Stephenson, of Wisconsin, octogenarian millionaire banker and lumberman, retains his seat. By a vote of 40 to 34 the senate late yesterday declared his election valid and rejected the charge that $107,793, which the senator admitted spending in the Wisconsin primaries, had been used corruptly.

Twenty-nine republicans and eleven democrats voted to hold Senator Stephenson's election a valid one. Eighteen democrats and 16 republicans voted to declare it corruptly obtained. The ballots were cast as follows:

For Stephenson—Bradley, Brandegee, Briggs, Burnham, Burton, Clark, of Wyoming, Crane, Curtis, Dillingham, Dupont, Gamble, Heyburn, Lippett, Lodge, Lorimer, McCumber, Dixon, Oliver, Page, Penrose, McLean, Perkins, Richardson, Root, Smoot, Sutherland, Warren and Wettmore, republicans; Bankhead, Chilton, Fletcher, Foster, Johnston, Newlands, Overman, Pomerene, Rayner, Smith, of Maryland, Watson and Thornton, democrats.

For Unseating Him.

Against Stephenson—Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Brown, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Dixon, Gronna, Jones, Kenyon, LaFollette, Poindexter, Smith of Michigan, Townsend and Works, republicans; Bryan, Chamberlain, Culberson, Gardner, Hitchcock, Johnston, Kern, Lea, Martine, Myers, O'Gorman, Owen, Percy, Shively, Smith of Georgia, Smith of South Carolina, Stone and Williams, democrats.

The pairs were: Nelson with Bacon; Gallinger with Clarke, of Arkansas; Guggenheim with Davis; Cullom with Simmons; Paynter with Gore and Bailey with Reed, the first named in each case being favorable to Stephenson and the last named against him. The senators unrecorded and unpaired were: Martin and Swanson, Virginia; Taylor, of Tennessee; Tillman, South Carolina, and Mr. Stephenson, who of course, refrained from voting. For Senator Taylor Mr. Lea explained that he was too ill to be consulted.

Felt Vindication Due.

Senator Stephenson declared that he felt a vindication was due to him.

"I never spent a dollar wrongfully in my life," said he. "In sixty-six years of active management of large institutions, I have employed several thousand men—three generations of them and never had a strike. I never used a dollar for fraud of any kind."

Senator Lorimer, whose vote for Senator Stephenson was greeted by an outburst of laughter in the senate galleries is under similar charges.

The vote came at the end of a day's speech-making by Senators Pomerene and Sutherland for Mr. Stephenson, and Senator Cummins, Lea, O'Gorman and Poindexter against him. Mr. Poindexter declared Senator Stephenson's alleged offense greater than that charged against Senator Lorimer. Senator Lea declared that Senator Stephenson's workers had violated the rules of ordinary decency and propriety and wept because there was nothing left to violate.

FIGHT DUEL IN OAKLAND CHURCH

Ex-Convict is Slain and Former Mayor Badly Wounded.

ENEMIES FOR YEARS

Oakland, Cal., March 28.—Adolph Goldman, recently released from San Quentin prison, was killed and E. W. Snow, former mayor of Oakland, was desperately wounded in a duel fought last night in the assembly rooms of the First Congregational church in this city.

Only the sexton, Charles F. Lewis, and Mrs. F. Cassidy, were witnesses, the congregation expected for prayer meeting not having arrived.

The duel was the outcome of an enmity dating back to the time Snow was elected in 1899. Previously the men had been the best of friends. Some years ago Goldman shot Snow after a quarrel in San Francisco and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary after a long legal battle in which evidence was adduced besmirching the character of both men.

The witnesses say Snow was the first to enter the church last night and was followed a few moments later by Goldman, who took a seat across the aisle from him.

The first intimation of trouble was when Goldman attacked Snow, slashing him with a razor. While Snow was endeavoring to defend himself, Goldman drew a revolver and shot once.

Snow fell to his knees and from that position fired, the bullet striking Goldman in the chest and causing him to sink to the floor. Snow staggered to his feet and fired twice more, both bullets finding their mark.

Goldman fired from his recumbent position, the bullets striking Snow in the head, but the latter managed to fire again, piercing Goldman's head and killing him instantly.

Snow was taken to a hospital. Surgeons hold out little hope for his recovery.

Mrs. Russell, wife of a homesteader living near Eagle Butte, N. D., a few days ago missed a diamond setting from a ring and started a vain search of the house with a dust brush and tray. Mr. Russell the next day set his teeth against something hard in a slice of fresh bread which his wife had just baked, and began critically to search for the cause of trouble. He found he was biting on the missing sparkler and apologized.

Bids for the construction of the Coombs street bridge over the Maumee river were placed in the hands of the board of county commissioners early today and were still under fire late this afternoon, but no award had been made.

Three bids on steel structure were received but were not being considered. One is from the Attica Bridge company, of Attica, Ind., $47,097, and another from the Elkhart Bridge company, $48,-200, and the third from the National Concrete company, $48,094.

the government. In the great military camp at Aldershot 10,000 soldiers are held in readiness to move at any moment to any point in the country and at other military posts similar arrangements have been made.

More urgent even than the necessity of protecting the miners is the very heavy duty facing the country of relieving the destitution caused everywhere by the strike. Miners are living in semi-starvation. The settlement can come none too soon, for of the two million men besides the miners who have been thrown out of employment at least a half do not belong to any trade organization and therefore receive no out-of-work benefit.

Distress More Terrible.

In southern Wales the distress is becoming more terrible each day. In thousands of homes there would be no fuel and no food but for the efforts of the relief committees. The women and children, however, suffer in patience, hoping for a settlement which shall be favorable to their men. Prices everywhere are still rising and it is almost impossible even for those men who are receiving out-of-work benefit to purchase the necessities of life.

The worst famine spot in the whole country is in the potteries district, which comprises the towns of Stoke-Upon-Trent, Hanley, Longton, Burslem, Tunstall and Newcastle-Under-Lyme. One of the doctors engaged in the work of relief came across three persons dying of starvation.

These people are of a proud stock. They refused to go to refugees or to ask for food, and it is feared that grave mortality will occur among the 170,000 men unemployed in that district and their wives and children unless work is speedily provided for them and they can obtain food by their own efforts.

It will take some time after the mines have again been opened to get enough fuel to start once more all the factories that have been closed down to the lack of driving power.

On the river Tyne, whose surface is usually covered with vessels coming in or going out, no fewer than 132 steamers are laid up and in addition to the miners there are forty thousand men unemployed.

Split in Ranks of Labor.

The condition of things has brought about a serious split in the ranks of the labor party and has strained the relations between the miners and the other trade unionists. It was only in 1909 that the miners joined the labor party, they having always maintained their own representatives in parliament and there is now a likelihood that they will again separate. At the last meeting of the labor party there were angry scenes and violent recriminations as to the attitude which should be taken by the party on the third reading of the government minimum wage bill. The other trade unionists wanted to abstain from voting altogether, but the miners insisted on opposing the measure, and thus made the labor party vote against a bill which for the first time in the history of England embodied the principle of a minimum wage for workers.

This may embarrass the whole of the labor movement in this country as the question of a minimum wage for workmen has been one of the chief planks of the labor party's platform.

Several socialist members of the house of commons announced today that they will speak in various parts of the country during the week end in favor of the government minimum wage bill.

REAL DOINGS AT HAZELTON

James Kinman's Rat-Killing Gang to Have a Busy Time of It.

Hazelton, Ind., March 28.—James Kinman's "rat-killing gang," composed of 100 men and forty dogs, which has killed 4,000 rats in four years, arranged today to attack a swarm of rats in Frank Cassidy's cornerib on Easter Sunday. Boys are engaged in catching rats and turning them into the crib to increase the sport. The "gang's" annual "egg roast" will follow the dismantling of the crib and the rat-killing.

BACKACHE ALMOST UNBEARABLE.

Is an almost certain result of kidney trouble. D. Toomey, 803 E. Olive St., Bloomington, Ill., says; "I suffered with backache and pains in my kidneys which were almost unbearable. I gave Foley Kidney Pills a good trial, and they done wonders for me. Today I can do a real hard day's work and not feel the effects." Foley Kidney Pills will cure any case of kidney and bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Dreier Drug Co.

In view of the fact that one of the great fraternal orders is to increase its rates January 1st, 1913, and has been sending out publications to its members saying that the new rates named were guaranteed, Mr. C. W. Orr, in relation to the subject, said:

"No fraternal order, no assessment company, can guarantee any rate; in fact, the law requires that every assessment company and every fraternal order shall have the power and the right and the privilege at any time to make additional assessments. The law prohibits other than an old line legal reserve company making any guaranteed level rate. In order to furnish a guaranteed level rate the law requires that a certain reserve shall be set aside each year and that reserve, on the old line tables, has always been sufficient to carry out the contract when the company was properly managed. It would be well for all people to bear in mind that good insurance costs money, that while the statutes of the state of Indiana and the statutes of every state in the Union regulate the net premium a company must charge for a guaranteed level rate insurance, no company is permitted to make a guaranteed level rate without qualifying under the old line legal reserve laws."

In order to give an idea of the amount charged for their lowest priced full life policy with a guaranteed level premium rate the table of the Ætna's rates is being printed elsewhere.

PREDICTS A BIG VOTE FOR STRIKE

Less Than 10 Per Cent. of Engineers Will Oppose It, Says Stone.

HE BLAMES PUBLIC

New York, March 28.—Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, predicted here today that when the result of the strike vote on the wage question is made public here on April 10 it will be found that less than 2,500 of the 25,000 engineers in the brotherhood oppose a strike.

"It is significant," said Mr. Stone, "that in none of our conferences with the eastern railroad representatives have they once declared that our demands were unjust. They do not say we do not need the increase; they say merely that they can't afford to grant it, because they are not allowed increased freight rates. The interstate commerce commission stands in the way of any raise, and as the commission represents the public, it is really the public that is the stumbling block. That is why I repeat that the public needs an object lesson to convince them that the roads are entitled to more pay for the freight they carry. Freight rates are bound to go up."

necessarily be involved, employ about 300,000 men.

COAL PANIC SUBSIDES.

New York, March 28.—On the eve of a suspension of work in the anthracite coal region because of the inability of the operators and the miners to come to an agreement on the wage scale and certain working conditions wholesale coal dealers and shippers say today the coal panic among consumers has practically subsided. The buyers of coal have laid in their supplies and the demand for anthracite in this market has fallen off.

Coal is coming to market in large quantities and is now quite easily obtained. The early strike talk caused an unusual demand but the wholesalers say this has been satisfied.

It is officially stated that reports of a dissension among the members of the anthracite operators' committee as to the policy to be pursued toward the mine workers are unfounded. Operators here decline to discuss the situation.

There has been an unusual rush to charter vessels to carry soft coal abroad because of the situation in England, but whether this demand can be satisfied in the event of a suspension in the bituminous region could not be learned today.

ACTOR IS A SUICIDE.

New York, March 28.—Max Freedman, an actor, 50 years old, committed suicide during the night by hanging himself in the room of a Seventh avenue hotel. He used a fire escape rope, the police report, to end his life.

Freedman came to America from Germany and has been known as both actor and manager. He was first manager of the Germania theater in New York and later went to California.

ACCEPT A COMPROMISE.

Philadelphia, March 28.—A strike among the textile workers in the Kensington mill district of this city has been avoided by the action of the upholstery weavers' union in accepting a compromise offered by the mill owners. The men asked for an increase in wages from 24 to 26 cents an hour, a reduction in working hours from 57 to 54 a week, and other concessions. The employers conceded the wage demand, but would not reduce the hours below 55 a week.

PASTOR NORRIS RESIGNS.

Texas Clergyman, Victim of Attacks, Quits Pulpit.

Fort Worth, Texas, March 28.—Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church, on whose life several attacks have been made, has resigned his pastorate, according to an announcement made today and at noon left for a sanitarium to remain until April 1 when he is to answer to an indictment here charging him with perjury.

The indictment was returned by the grand jury after it had heard the pastor's story about several alleged attacks on his life and his narrative of events leading up to attempts to burn his church and the parsonage. Rev. Mr. Norris blames an alleged ring of protagonists of evil for attacks on him. He has been in the public eye since he fought horse racing in Texas several years ago.

Rev. Mr. Norris asserts that his resignation is for a temporary term, and that he will return to Fort Worth.

TWO BILLS IN FAVOR.

Springfield, Ill., March 28.—The house presidential preference primary committee voted out favorably two primary bills, one the bill which passed the senate, and the other Representative Chiperfield's house bill. The committee agreed to give the senate bill preference, because of its advanced stage. This bill will be read a second time tomorrow and at 12:05 a. m. Saturday will be placed upon final passage by the house.

A writer in the Electrical Review thinks that electrical companies should attach to business letters a "sticker" defining electrical terms, such as watt, ampere, volt, kilowatt load, factor, etc. This brings to mind a paragraph in another journal about a telephone subscriber who called up "Information" to ask how many inches there are in a meter. To information's inquiry, "Haven't you got a dictionary that you could consult?" came the answer, "Yes, but it's less trouble to ask you."

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire in this manner to thank our many friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our beloved daughter and sister; also for the floral offerings, and the Rev. August Lange for the comforting words spoken in the sad hour of our bereavement.

I Cure Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases

Reduced Fees

For the purpose of proving the advantages of my methods in the treatment and cure of PELVIC, NERVOUS and CHRONIC disease, I will not only give to everyone who is anxious to obtain a cure and who will call at my office before APRIL 1ST a careful and thorough examination FREE of CHARGE, but to further demonstrate to the public the rapidity and thoroughness of the CURES I make, I will treat any case I accept for a CURE between now and APRIL 1St AT A GREATLY REDUCED FEE.

The warm summer months will soon be here, the time of the year when the hardest work is to be done.

Are you physically able to do your part and keep your place in the procession, or is there some disease which is slowly, but surely undermining your vitality and unfitting you for performing your part of the duties which every man owes to his country, to his neighbors, to his family, his loved ones and to himself?

Do you think you are doing your duty by neglecting an opportunity to rid yourself of the shackles of disease?

Every man who does less than he should do at his desk, in the shop or on the farm is weak in some way.

I have found that the man who is unable to accomplish all that he hopes or expects is often the silent sufferer from some PELVIC or CHRONIC disease which is slowly, but surely, wrecking his nervous system and as surely unfitting him for actively competing with his fellowmen.

We all have a duty to perform or an ambition to fulfill, and those who are weakest must inevitably drop behind.

Do you want to be one of these, or do you want to take your place in the world that nature intended you should?

Years of experience in the treatment of PELVIC, NERVOUS and CHRONIC diseases have enabled me to perfect methods which will not only cure these DEEP-SEATED diseases in which the ordinary methods have failed, but will restore to a normal and healthy condition the broken-down and devitalized NERVOUS system.

I PERSONALLY TREAT EVERY CASE MYSELF.

HUNDREDS of satisfied patients have testified to my ability to cure these CHRONIC and DEEP-SEATED diseases in which the ordinary methods have failed.

FREE EXAMINATION—To any sufferer who honestly desires to get well I will give a careful and thorough examination FREE OF CHARGE, and if your case is curable I will make my fee as low as possible and consistent with honest, scientific treatment. If you cannot be cured I will frankly tell you so, as I have no time to waste on incurable diseases.

I learn the exact condition of the rectum, the bladder and every organ of the genito-urinary system. This in itself is of the highest importance, inasmuch as a broken-down nervous system and many more of the troubles of the STOMACH, LIVER, HEART, KIDNEYS, ETC., are reflex and are the direct results of some PELVIC LESION OR DISEASE.

VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, RUPTURE, PILES, FISTULA, ETC., cured without knife and without detention from business.

BLOOD POISON—I use only the most advanced methods in the treatment of Blood Poison and kindred diseases.

ECZEMA and other skin diseases quickly cured.

PROSTATIC ENLARGEMENT results from inflammation. I reduce the enlargement and have been able to cure about 90 per cent. of the cases.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE MAYOR.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 26, 1912.

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the City of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Gentlemen: I am sending to your honorable body herewith the papers in relation to the donation of real estate recently made by Col. David N. Foster and Hon. Samuel M. Foster, to the city of Fort Wayne, Indiana. These papers consist of a copy of the communication from the Messrs. Foster, which accompanied the deed and abstract for the land donated; a copy of the preamble and resolution adopted by a majority of the board of park commissioners in accepting said gift, together with the letter from said board of park commissioners transmitting said papers to me. The original letter of donation and the deed and the abstract, which accompanied said letter, are on file in the office of the board of park commissioners.

On behalf of the citizens of Fort Wayne I desire to take advantage of this opportunity to thank Col. David N. Foster and Hon. Samuel M. Foster for the splendid gift they have made to our city. It is so big and grand, our hearts swell with pride when we pause to think of the noble citizenship, the genuine public spirit, the true civic patriotism that prompted so generous and so wise a gift.

A public park, free to all the people and for all time, washed by the waters of the beautiful St. Mary's river for a distance of four miles, shaded with trees a century old—a playground for generations yet to come! Could a wiser selection for a monument have been made? The Foster monument will be forever located in the hearts of the living.

In everything that has been for the advancement, the betterment, the progress of Fort Wayne, D. N. and S. M. Foster have given their time, energy and money. Their lives have not been one of mere theory; they have put into practice their rule of life civic patriotism.

Fort Wayne is proud of the Foster Brothers. Not only have they been an influence, but an inspiration in the upbuilding of Fort Wayne. My most earnest prayer is that they may live long to enjoy with us the happiness "Foster Park" is sure to bring to all.

The Foster gift comes at the right time. The public spirit of our citizens is aroused as it never was aroused before. The forward movement which has taken hold of our people must not be permitted to lag. The Foster gift sets a good example to other public-spirited citizens of means and to the people as a whole. We, the servants and duly elected representatives of the people, must see to it that the best civic thought and the best civic spirit of the people is encouraged by their government in every reasonable way. The present movement of the people to make Fort Wayne a better, healthier and more beautiful place in which to work, to live and raise our children is entitled to every consistent support within our power to give.

Respectfully submitted,
JESSE GRICE,
Mayor.

Received and referred to the committee on public parks to draft a suitable acknowledgment of the gift.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 25, 1912.

To His Honor, Mayor Grice, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Dear Sir: At the regular meeting of the board of park commissioners held Saturday, March 23, 1912, David N. Foster and Samuel M. Foster tendered to the city a warranty deed of the grounds they have recently purchased lying along the east bank of the St. Mary's river, which grounds are to constitute and be known as Foster park.

As secretary of the board I was instructed to transmit to you a copy of the communication from the Messrs. Foster, which accompanied the deed and abstracts for the land given, and also a copy of the preamble and resolutions adopted by a majority of the board of park commissioners in accepting said gift. Please find these herewith attached.

Respectfully yours,
CHARLES J. STEISS,
Secretary.

Copy.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 22, 1912.

To the Board of Park Commissioners of the City of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Gentlemen: The undersigned propose to convey by deed to the city of Fort Wayne, through your honorable board and without charge, certain lands lying south of the city along the east bank of the St. Mary's river. These lands are more particularly described in the deed accompanying this communication. We are not disposed to hamper the city in days to come by imposing any conditions or restrictions further than to provide that the lands conveyed shall be used for park and recreation purposes; that the same shall be open to all the people subject to such rules and regulations as the proper authorities may provide for the management and control of its other parks; that in the event the city should discontinue such use of the lands they shall revert to the grantors, their heirs and assigns, and that the park thus established shall be known by the name of the donors.

We are impressed with the thought that this is about the only form in which we can erect a monument or memorial that the ravages of time will not injure and destroy, but which on the contrary will grow in beauty and usefulness so long as the world shall last.

We trust that acting for and in the name of the city our honorable board will see its way clear to accept this gift and that public opinion will support the board in promptly opening the park for public use and in adding to its natural beauty as rapidly as the funds of the board will permit.

Very respectfully,
DAVID N. FOSTER.
SAMUEL M. FOSTER.

Fort Wayne, Indiana, March 23, 1912.

Resolution by the Board of Park Commissioners Accepting the Foster Park.

Whereas, Our distinguished fellow citizens, Col. David N. Foster and Hon. Samuel M. Foster, have donated to the city of Fort Wayne, Indiana, certain lands, which are fully described in the deed accompanying their letter of donation; and,

Whereas, These lands, according to the will of the donors, are to be used for park and recreation purposes, subject to the rules and regulations of the authorities to whom the parks of the city are entrusted; and,

Whereas, The magnanimous donors have hampered the city by no conditions or restrictions excepting those which are determined by the nature and purpose of the splendid gift; therefore be it

Resolved, by the board of park commissioners, through the three members whose signatures are attached to this paper:

That, acting on behalf and in the name of the city of Fort Wayne, we accept cheerfully and with deeply felt gratitude this gift for the purpose indicated by the grantors, and that we hereby officially tender them the heartiest thanks of our entire community, which justly deems itself honored highly by such munificence of two of its own members; and be it further

Resolved, That we express our appreciation of the magnificent donation by giving to the lands thus conveyed to the city the official designation, "The David N. and Samuel M. Foster Park," or more briefly, "The Foster Park;" and be it further

Resolved, That we commend the donors for their public-spirited action, through which they have erected unto themselves a grand monument that will, for ages to come, perpetuate not only their name, but the memory of their civic consciousness, of their disinterested love towards their fellow citizens, and of their municipal patriotism serving as a glorious example to be imitated by the present and by future generations—a living and growing monument which, with its green boughs, its shaded walks and driveways, its singing birds, its ripling waters, its brilliant flowers and other charms of nature, giving rest and recreation, joy and happiness to thousands of men, women and children, will be more enduring and beneficial by far than a mere record engraved on cold dead stone could ever be—a monument that will be the pride of Fort Wayne and a constant delight to every inhabitant of our city as well as to the stranger whom we are glad to entertain as our guest; and be it further

Resolved, That we recommend the opening and improvement of this park at the earliest convenience, and be it further

Resolved, That we call the attention of other citizens of means residing in Fort Wayne to the splendid opportunity offered them by present conditions to perpetuate their names and to show their interest in a similar manner; and be it lastly

Resolved, That copies of the letter of donation and of these resolutions be spread on our records, and transmitted to the mayor and to the common council of our city.

LOUIS FOX,
OSCAR W. TRESSELT,
LOUIS DORN,
Board of Park Commissioners.

Following the initiation of the class came a banquet at the Elks' home at which there were sixty covers. A. A. Serva was the toastmaster and the following responses were made: S. A. Hobson, on "Jovianism;" F. S. Hunting, on "Co-Operation;" O. N. Guldlin, on "Memories of the Past;" S. B. Fleming, on "Politics;" A. A. Gray, of Chicago, editor of The Electrical Review and Western Electrician, on "The Press;" T. J. Ryan, of Cincinnati, one of the candidates, who was introduced as Jolly Tom Ryan, on "The Virtues of the Candidates."

The local league starts under the most favorable auspices and it will soon have a membership of several hundred.

History of the Order.

The Order of the Rejuvenated Sons of Jove is a commercial association, its prime object being the betterment of electrical condition and to aid the members in handling their business. It had its origin at Austin, Texas, May 5, 1899, when the first lodge, with a charter membership of forty-four, was organized. Originally the order was inclined more toward the social than the commercial development of the electrical industry and it was not until six years later, when the membership had reached 240, that the members began to realize that they had laid the foundation for a powerful commercial body. From that day it has been considered a truly commercial organization, its scope has been broadened to admit to membership men from all branches of the electrical field—including street railway employes and officials, lighting station attaches, the telephone officers and employes, factorymen, electrical jobbing concern employes and proprietors and the salesmen of electrical machinery and supplies. Such famous men as Thomas Edison, C. A. Coffin, George Westinghouse, Samuel Insul and Elihu Thomas became interested in it and the National Electric Light association recognized it as a meritorious organization and at the annual meeting in New York in May, 1911, made a "Jovian Rejuvenation" a part of the program. At that time the membership had reached 5,000. Up to the beginning of the fiscal year 1911-1912, the organization work was irregular and spasmodic in character and it was decided to adopt more systematic methods. A statesman was appointed for every state in the United States and province in Canada and Mexico and office Indiana statesman fell upon A. A. Serva, of this city, who has been active in the order. Deputy statesmen are being appointed for all the cities of importance in the countries named and the result will be the institution of hundreds more lodges—or leagues, as they are called—in the near future. Statesmen at large are appointed from the ranks of the traveling men and they are required to give direct aid to state, district or city statesmen whenever possible. In a pamphlet explaining the objects and aims of the order by Ell C. Bennett, the author closes with the statement that "the Sons of Jove has a distinct, definite purpose, toward which it is driving with a power which co-operation renders irresistible. The order has thrown aside its apron strings and abandoned the nursing bottle. Just as surely as the electrical profession will dominate all others in the not far distant future so will the Sons of Jove distance all other organizations of a like nature. Just so surely will it, through its tremendous organized strength, bring about the co-operation among the electrical fraternity, without which nothing really great is ever possible.

HOW FARRELL FOUND HIMSELF

By E. B. Waterworth

Sergeant Collins had leaped from behind the desk of the precinct station at the first shout which arose on the street. After years of service at the same station deep in the city's heart, he could always distinguish, even above the clatter and roar of traffic, that quality in a sudden uproar which indicated danger or a disturbance of the peace.

As he rushed to the door, with old Ben, the turnkey, pottering slowly in his wake he felt from sheer force of habit for his rear hip pocket to see that his revolver was handy in case it might be needed; and he swore vigorously to himself as it flashed across his mind that he had left it in the Lieutenant's locker—and that the Lieutenant was then out for lunch.

When he reached the door, after three hasty strides, he swore again and then uttered a warning yell to some children, who, bewildered by the cry arising up the street, were standing doubtfully in the gutter.

"Git in some store, there! Hurry, youse!"

In one glance he had grasped the situation. Half a block away, with head high lifted, tail lashing its flanks and stepping swiftly forward a few mincing steps at a time, was a steer—one of the swift, rangy animals which occasionally escaped from the shipping yards, a couple of blocks away, and had their last taste of wild freedom in the city streets. Sometimes these animals, frightened and blinded by the roar and changing view about them after their long journeys from the West, were easily rounded up and driven back by attaches of the yard. Sometimes they ran amuck in a wild fit of desperation induced by terror. And his first glance told the Sergeant that this steer was of the latter kind.

"He sure means trouble!" groaned the Sergeant, frantically glancing about the station to discover a weapon. "Got a gun, Ben?"

Without waiting for the old man's mumbled reply in the negative, the Sergeant snatched up a heavy nightstick, only to throw it down with a crash to pick up the rusty poker of the massive stove, which stood cold and dejected in the corner of the big, bare room throughout the summer. The poker was a huge affair, and, in case of necessity, he reflected, he could stun a steer with it. In the meantime, he fluently blamed himself for leaving his revolver in the locker. He had placed it there, after cleaning, to give a free dose of oil a chance to loosen the action which had become tightened with rust.

Ready as he was to do his duty, the Sergeant paused with a critical eye as he reached the open door. He was perfectly willing to attack the steer with his simple weapon if need arose for it. But he was also prepared to bide the arrival of aid if it could be done without danger to passersby. For he knew that to assail the huge brute, which stood pawing the street sweepings, piled in the gutter, all the while looking about in readiness for instant assault on any thing or person which seemed offensive, would be a desperate affair indeed.

Vigorous shouts from the Sergeant and Ben scared back two little girls who were about to cross the street. One man, issuing absent-mindedly from the swinging door of a saloon, glanced up just in time, upon hearing the chorus of yells from the heads which fringed all the windows in the block, to leap wildly back to his refuge. He dashed through the swinging door just as one thousand pounds of beef and bone hurtled in his direction. Had he been observant, like Sergeant Collins, he doubtless would have breathed thanks that his pursuer was of the long-horned variety of range cattle. One eager, searching horn barely reached his coat tails as he passed through the door. The other spreading out widely, caught on the door jamb and snapped off—but it stopped the rush, although the big brown and white body was whirled sideways by the force of its own impact, banging against the brick wall as the steer slipped on the sidewalk. The swinging doors, slamming on its nose at the same moment, evidently startled the animal, which backed off, snorted loudly and eyed the door menacingly from the gutter.

"If he's going to start chargin' around here," muttered the Sergeant, with a glance at the low store fronts on all sides, through which the refugees were peering, "it's goin' to be bad. Or if he goes after thim horses——"

He glanced to the next block where a long line of drays were drawn up, the horses placidly eating their noonday meal, while their drivers, hastily arisen from the shady side of the building where they had been eating their lunch, were watching the excitement on the block and keeping within safe distance of the factory doors.

"It'll be bad," the Sergeant repeated, as he took a fresh grip on the poker and started forth. Then he stopped with a sigh of relief. On the opposite corner, sprinting toward the steer with his revolver already in his hand, was young Policeman Farrell, just elevated to become a patrolman, after service as a probationary.

"Don't waste time! He's dangerous! Let him have it!" yelled the Sergeant.

Policeman Farrell turned a countenance toward him which was wreathed in a smile of joyous excitement. He waved a hand of recognition across the street and dropped to a brisk walk as he approached the steer.

"He goes at him quick enough," remarked the Sergeant, with a note of admiration in his voice; "but the boy oughtn't to go that close. He could drop that damned brute from where he is."

"He's made a good record in gun practice," mumbled old Ben; "maybe he's waitin'——"

But the Sergeant paid no attention to what the old man was saying. Without a pause, Farrell had kept on swiftly toward the steer, merely giving a peremptory shout which attracted its attention. Twenty yards from the steer, without slackening pace, he stepped into the street and still walked quickly toward it. The steer, recognizing another enemy, glared at him for one threatening second. The sight of its statue-like pose, of the rigid tail held out stiffly from the spine, of the strings of froth falling from the mouth, brought forth screams of terror for the officer from the women gathered at the second-story windows. Even the Sergeant yelled a caution down the block, although he realized it would be futile.

"HE SAYS, 'NO SOR,' SCARED LIKE"

For just one instant the steer held its pose. Policeman Farrell was within twenty-five feet of him and suddenly halted, throwing up the arm in which he held his revolver. Even as he did so, the steer's head dropped for the charge, its tail rose high above its back and the muscles of its flanks tightened, as it prepared to plunge forward.

But the leap was never taken. Policeman Farrell had brought his revolver forward at the end of his extended arm in the manner of target shooting, taught him in the police gallery. The wild bellow which marked the steer's impulse to charge was mingled with the sharp crack of smokeless powder from the officer's .38. And with just enough force in its contracting muscles to hurl its huge bulk forward, a limp mass, upon its nose, the steer dropped, the bullet hole almost imperceptible in the long hair of its forehead. Then the prostrate bulk gave one moaning sigh, and, with a last stiffening of the mud-stained limbs, gasped out its life.

Hardly had the echo of the shot died away, when the carcass was surrounded by an eager crowd, the men explaining why they had run, and those attracted by the report from around corners demanding shrilly what had happened. The girls from the garment-working factories of the neighborhood swarmed out, in a delighted sense of half-terror, and looked admiringly at Policeman Farrell, who, perfectly unconcerned, but with a note of complacence in his voice, explained how he had first seen the steer when two blocks away.

"I saw him take a poke at you," he remarked as he slipped another cartridge into his revolver, nodding his head at the man who had been the steer's first object of attack, "and it's a good thing he wasn't one of those short-horned Herefords we've been having shipped here lately. He'd have gone through that door right after you, sure. His horn stopped him."

The man twirled his mustache in this reflected glory and commenced giving voluble descriptions of his experience. But Farrell seeing that two mounted emissaries from the stockyards were already on hand, turned and walked toward the station.

He made his report on the occurrence, smiling as the Sergeant complimented him. His superior officer even clumsily tried to explain his own nonappearance on the scene.

"It's perhaps a good thing," said Farrell, consolingly; "it would have been, perhaps, natural for you, if you'd had your gun, to fire at him when he charged that time. An' it's mighty hard to stop a big brute like that with a shot in the side. It might just have made him mad, and he might have gone off on a tear all through the district."

And the Sergeant, well pleased with this partial excuse for his not having his weapon always at hand as the rules required, merely got his revolver from the Lieutenant's locker at the earliest possible moment and turned in a commendatory report of Farrell's deed.

"It's glad I am to see this man has somethin' in him," mused Captain Hagerty that evening, as he read the report, the while passing a hand over his clean-shaven chin. "I was afeard of what he might do with that Connor gang up on the next block. But he's started off well."

In fact, when Farrell had first been assigned to his precinct two days before, Captain Hagerty had been sorely perplexed. Lying as his station did, in one of the roughest regions of the city, his officers at times were called upon to put forth their every ounce of physical and moral effort to handle some of the turbulent characters which infested the region. Like many another district of its sort, it was a hot-bed of politics. And diplomacy was required in handling some cases, even if these were clear infractions of the law. Farrell's readiness with a "gun," he fancied, might save him much trouble if he did not let his inclination run too far that way—if it did, the Captain reflected grimly, there was a certainty of trouble and plenty of it.

His belief that the episode in which the patrolman had just figured would help the officer's standing came partly true. The man who had been charged by the steer was a resident of the district and spoke highly of Farrell's rush into danger—his tale magnifying the event in all details so as to emphasize his own part and the coolness he had shown in escaping. By the time the tale had permeated the district, Farrell was a subject of much curiosity to the Connor gang, who made "Ben's Place" and "The Old '49" their headquarters. So on his first shift to a night beat, when the gentry who frequented those places were spending their hours of leisure consuming beer, Farrell found himself a center of interest and was asked to have a drink in several bars, besides being greeted in friendly fashion by numerous residents of his precinct.

"Whatever ye do," his captain had cautioned him, "don't go to drinkin' with any of thim loafers around here. There's a rule on the departmint that an officer mustn't inter a saloon excipt on duty. Ye can see it's a dead letter. But it'll be hard for ye if ye get in a row some time, in one of thim places. If ye want a sup of beer occasionally, take it when ye're off duty."

But a few days of watching told him that Farrell clearly was not obeying his mandate—or, rather, was not following his advice. The policeman was of a sociable disposition apparently, thought his chief disgustedly, but he refrained from speaking to him on the subject. Farrell never showed the effects of liquor, except in a slightly heightened color, always called up promptly and followed the routine of his station in methodical fashion. But he remained a good deal of a mystery to his commanding officers.

"Do you believe Farrell's stringin' in with that bunch on the next block?" Hagerty once demanded of Sergeant Collins in secret conclave. "It'll be a bad thing for him if he is. They've got too many black marks against them. Young Connor, one of that gang, is in the pen now. Yet here's Farrell comin' in night after night, without ever havin' trouble with thim."

The Sergeant shook his head in slow perplexity.

"He's a decent, well-spoken boy," he remarked in a worried tone; "but I can't size him up some way. I don't think he's stringin' in with that gang. But I mind a few nights ago—I was making the rounds on the upper end of the precinct—that I heard some of that bunch up at Grogan's makin' cracks about him as he walked past. He heard 'em all right. But he never batted an eye. You know how those fellows stand in with th' administration? Well, I'd told him not to beat any of them up if he ever made a pinch, just as a matter of policy. But I didn't tell him to stand for them abusin' him any. One of them chucked half a brick right near him—he threw it into a puddle Farrell was passin' and did it on purpose to splash the water over him. It splashed all over his trousers. Yet he made out he didn't notice and walked on."

"Yet I saw him takin' a drink with one of thim fellers, not long since," said the mystified captain, as he slammed down his desk. "There's somethin' I don't like about that man."

Even a faint whisper spreads—and oft times with considerable speed. It was not long before a hint or two that Farrell was letting himself be "bluffed" by the tougher element of the region began to percolate through the night squad. And this was made a certainty when, after walking in pairs on Saturday evenings as was the custom in the precinct on account of its turbulence on pay nights, Farrell's various companions had all brought back stories which, small enough in themselves, seemed to justify the whispered suspicion that he was "off color."

"Any man who would let them fellys on the north edge of the beat talk back to him needs to be taught somethin'," said a grizzled patrolman of long experience in the ward, as he conversed with a few fellow-officers. "Whin I wint past there with him last Saturday, he first suggested walkin' on the far side of the street. I told him I wanted to see who was in that gang on the corner. Whin we passed they commenced makin' remarks about brass buttons and solid bone heads. I turns quick enough an' grabs one of them, askin' if he means me. He says, 'No, sor,' scared like, for I was gettin' my night stick ready. I gives him a shake and asks if he means th' other officer. He hesitates a minute, so I shakes him and he says 'no' again. But there's Farrell—younger man than I am—stands there sayin' 'ah, come on.' Why, that's just encouragin' them guys. An' I didn't like the way he acted walkin' back down the beat."

"He's afraid, that's what he is," said a quiet voice from the rear of the room, where the wagon-man was smoking his pipe.

"Ah, come, Jim—don't say that—give him a chance—" burst from the others. For to accuse a policeman of being afraid was in the minds of every loyal officer at once the worst insult and the one which needed most proving in the entire category of accusations. Never in the history of their department had any man been summoned before the board on charges of cowardice in spite of numerous cases reported of neglect of duty. When a solitary case had been reported in another city, when, for the first time in that department's history an officer had had the buttons cut from his coat on a charge of cowardice, the members of the department had refrained from discussing the article and had all felt, indirectly, that this was a blot on the entire calling. So expostulation was general.

The wagon-man waited quietly until protests had died down.

"I know what I'm talking about," he said, confidently. "I was called out in a hurry up to the edge of the precinct last Saturday. The call from the box said things looked ugly. The captain ordered Farrell to go with the wagon. Now, you know what a quick trip of the wagon does in this district—it draws everybody outdoors. Halfway to the box Farrell claimed he had left his gun behind and got white in the face. When we got to the box we found Jerry Mandel, pinchin' a couple of those toughs that hang up around there. He was havin' his hands full and there must have been five hundred around that box watchin' the fight, all yellin'. Would you believe it? Farrell kept inside the wagon, askin' to have the prisoners passed in to him. He pretended not to understand and wouldn't budge when Mandel yelled to come down and help him. I had to jump down myself, and it's only luck that that green horse—the gray one—didn't get scared and run away."

"Maybe he ain't accustomed to handlin' a prisoner, yet," interposed one policeman.

"He's big enough: that's all I've got to say," responded Jim as he arose and walked back to the stables.

Not a man at the conclave repeated a word of the conversation. But little by little other anecdotes came in about Farrell, which made the captain stare at him doubtingly. Farrell always reported for duty neat and clean, complying to all the rules of departmental dress. Sometimes he came in with flushed face and disordered collar, and although the captain watched him earnestly for signs of liquor, he could not distinguish any symptoms of drinking.

"He must have been havin' some row," he murmured to himself. "Why doesn't he make a pinch, I wonder?"

So in the course of a few weeks Farrell commenced to have the reputation of an unreliable man. No cowardice charges were whispered, but it was clear that men on his beat did not wish to walk with him. And finally came the climax.

Farrell had been assigned to keep order at one of the boxing shows held by an athletic club in the neighborhood—a "club" which supported itself largely by holding ring bouts and by the proceeds of its bar. Partisanship shown by the referee had caused a surge toward the ring on the part of disgruntled spectators, one chair had already been thrown within the arena and affairs seemed ripe for a general outbreak when Sergeant Collins squeezed through the ropes, calling on Farrell to follow. This Farrell had not done, and the Sergeant strolling along the borders of the ring had contemptuously rapped with his heavy night stick the heads of a few hardy spirits, who were endeavoring to climb into the enclosure. One glance at Farrell's face in the crowd below made him turn away with contempt.

"It was rank violation of orders and the man was scared to death," he said that evening to the captain, as they sat in the latter's private office. "A prize fight crowd's the easiest in the world to handle—lots of noise and no danger. I jest didn't want anybody gettin' in the ring, where there was space enough for a scrap, so I called Farrell to follow. And his face went white as chalk and he was shakin' all over. He heard me all right. He jest didn't come."

And the captain, exasperated by other reports of the kind against Farrell, and rendered even more irritable by the policeman's weak defense of not having heard, ordered him to appear the next meeting before the police board. As the young officer left the room, with bowed head, Captain Hagerty hesitated a moment before making out his complaint.

"I've never accused another man of bein' a coward yet," he muttered to himself, as he ran his eye over Farrell's record, "but there's plenty of cases here that look bad. Still, I'll just put him down for neglect of duty."

Police Commissioners, well versed in their duties, can often read between the lines of a report made to them. And when they issued a summons for Farrell to appear, the president, an old man, long in office, gazed thoughtfully and rather sadly at the slip in his hand.

"It's the first case of the sort ever reported to me," he said slowly, "and I hope the officer can clear himself. I'm glad it's worded this way so the newspapers won't see anything in it. But we know what it means."

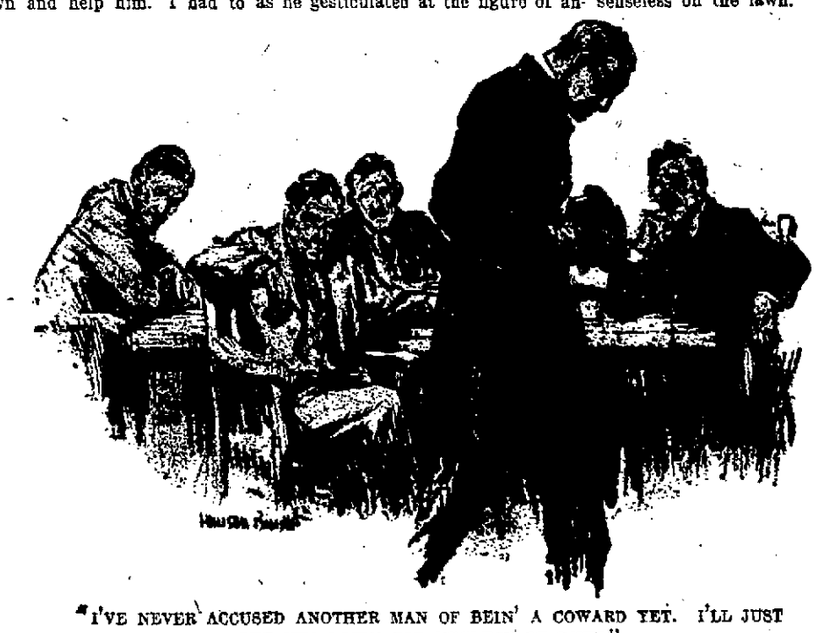
His colleagues nodded assent.

"I suppose he's that big young fellow sitting in the anteroom," remarked one of the commissioners; "he's large enough not to have any troubles of the sort. But what's that?"

The board, in its executive session, was occupying a room in the city hall, while their own rooms at police headquarters were being repaired. From the high windows of their room a shot rang out and a hoarse and threatening voice could be heard shouting angrily as they hurried to the windows.

On the wide lawn of the hall and almost below them stood a man brandishing a revolver and evidently crazed with drink. He was grinning and waving his arms wildly in triumph as he gesticulated at the figure of another man who was lying on the sidewalk, moving not at all. Across the lawn, coming toward him with the labored haste of age, was Patrolman McCarthy, the veteran guardian of the grounds about the hall. The old officer was clearly in distress from his hurry, but was fumbling under the tails of his coat as he ran, doggedly, toward the man with the weapon, who had dropped his gesticulation and stood gazing at him with head slightly forward, swaying slightly from the influence of liquor, but evidently keyed up to any frenzied deed, as could be seen from his attitude.

"It's that mulatto, Rogers, just out of the penitentiary," remarked the president of the board, as calmly as though another tragedy was not impending; "he was sent up for homicide—now he's out and crazed with drink again." There was no time to say more. The mulatto had drawn himself erect and was slowly raising his arm to aim at McCarthy, who, still tugging to get his refractory weapon from his pocket, was panting gamely across the lawn.



"I'VE NEVER ACCUSED ANOTHER MAN OF BEIN' A COWARD YET. I'LL JUST PUT HIM DOWN FOR NEGLECT OF DUTY"

"Poor Mac!" said the president under his breath and started to turn away his head—for he had known the veteran officer for years and could not bear to see what was coming. Then he suddenly whirled to the window again at the vice-president's cry:

"Look! Look!" shouted that official.

Out of the door of the hall beneath them darted Farrell, whose leap down the stairs from the anteroom had detained him but a few seconds. In his hand he held a revolver—a lengthy, heavy police weapon, which he handled with accustomed air. Almost unconsciously, the commissioners glanced at the mulatto, who had turned at the sound of the door slamming, and whose baleful face, as he glared at Farrell, made them shiver with its intensity of insane ferocity—then they turned toward Farrell who had leaped lightly out on the lawn and quickly, almost blithely, was approaching the man. Through the windows they could even catch the officer's clear laugh of contempt.

"Put down that gun, you d—d nigger, or I'll send you where you belong!" he shouted in a sneeringly peremptory tone. "Drop it, I say! If that gun ain't on the lawn when I reach that walk you get what's comin' to you!"

Under the commanding tones the mulatto had hesitated for a moment—then he raised his weapon with a glare of hate in his eye and leveled it at Farrell. And at the same instant Farrell leaped boldly forward on to the walk he had defined as a boundary and threw up his own revolver with a rapid, snake-like gesture—but before he could press the trigger, the mulatto, succumbing under the cold gleam of the eye which shone down the barrel, had dropped his weapon and cringed shivering with fright, his hands in the air, a pitiable shred of the dangerous murderer who had stood there but a moment before.

Lowering his arm with the revolver, but keeping the cocked weapon by his side, the policeman walked quickly up to his prisoner, kicking the fallen weapon far across the lawn, and ran a practiced hand over his clothes.

"He don't seem to be armed, Mac," he said, as the older man hastened up; "you might lead him to the box. Oh," he added, as the mulatto, through nervous tension or else because of the fumes of the drink reasserting themselves, made a plunge backward, "the gent seems to prefer to ride." And, lowering the hammer of his own revolver with the hand that clutched the weapon, he sent a smash across the man's forehead that stretched him senseless on the lawn.

"You'll have to call an ambulance for this man he shot, anyway," remarked Policeman Farrell cheerfully to McCarthy; "but you won't find him badly hurt. I saw a piece of his coat fly up when the nigger fired and I think the bullet must just have grazed his right shoulder."

Then, without waiting for the approach of the morbid throng which was pouring to the scene, and in which he saw several officers who would assist McCarthy, he turned to his session before the police board.

It was a quiet meeting, that executive session. The veteran president colored as he read some of the charges, which bore a double meaning to the officer's ears. And the policeman, sitting silent, also colored. For although cowardice was not charged it was implied.

There was silence for a moment as the president concluded. Then he arose.

"Officer," he said, as he tore the charges into slips, "my colleague and I have had a few minutes of discussion before we called you in after witnessing your work. In view of your recent performance, we not only dismiss these charges, but will see if there is any ground for malice behind them—well?"

Patrolman Farrell had risen to his feet and in a husky voice that could scarcely be heard had raised his hand in interruption.

"Those charges ain't malicious, gentlemen—they're true," he whispered.

For several moments nothing could be heard in the board room save the heavy breathing of the patrolman. Once he raised an anguished face and moaned:

"Gentlemen—if you'll give me a moment—if you'll give me a chance to do what's right!"

Again there was silence. Not a member of the board stirred as the big policeman pressed his hands against his face in a strong effort to control his emotions. Then, with a gulping sound, Farrell straightened himself and commenced to speak in a hard, expressionless voice.

"It's the truth, gentlemen; I'm a coward. I've tried not to show it, but, I've done it. I've always been that way. When I was a boy, I had a stepfather—he used to come home drunk and beat me—beat me 'til the doctor said my nervous system was shattered. At school, I was bigger than most boys of my age—an' stronger. Yet smaller boys could lick me. Somethin' seemed to turn to water in me, when I went to fight back. I would lose my strength. In all my fights, gentlemen, I was licked. I grew up that way—and you don't know what it means to a boy, year after year. I lost confidence in myself—couldn't do anything as well as the rest. An' it's told on me, it's told on me!

"I learned how to use a revolver—the drill sergeant can show you my record. When my mother and I moved here, I thought I'd leave all the old life behind me. It didn't take any bravery in me to kill that steer you read about just now! I can shoot, so he never had a chance. I could have dropped that drunken nigger out there, before he ever raised a gun. That wasn't bravery. Yet I let those fellows up in my precinct bluff me, because I couldn't use a revolver in a little scrap like that—an' if I'd fought them I'd have been licked, strong as I am. It's the old yellow streak, comin' back. Them charges are right, gentlemen, I'm a coward."

The officer buried his face in his hands again. For an instant no one spoke. Then the president arose softly, and put his hand on the policeman's shoulder.

"No man whose nervous system has been shattered can say he has a yellow streak, after the way you've acted, Farrell," he said, slowly. "You've simply been at a disadvantage all your life and don't realize now that you are on an even footing with any adversary. You have the law behind you as well. You are not a coward, either. It took moral courage to tell us what you've just done, and we need moral courage in this department, just as we need the physical kind of bravery. You haven't found yourself, that's all.

"Now, listen. The charges are dismissed. I will see you are made a desk man until you appreciate what I say—that confidence in yourself is what you want and that you will be supported when you do your duty. Do you want to try this new run?"

Policeman Farrell lifted his head and his eyes were wet.

"I'd like to, sir," he said simply; "and I hope, God willin', that if I come before ye again, it won't be as Farrell the coward."

It was at the next quarterly meeting of the board that the president, with a grim chuckle, read the account of a capture of two armed Italians, badly wanted as witnesses in a "black hand" case, by a policeman who had knocked them down with his night stick and had dragged them to a patrol box through a shrieking mob of the prisoners' friends, who had been deterred by the officer's demeanor from trying to rescue his captives.

"The officer's name is Farrell," remarked the president slowly. "I rather think, gentlemen, that the young man has found himself."

WHEAT GOES UP ANOTHER CENT

The Quotation Today is 96 —and Eggs Also Make a Cent Advance.

DUE TO BAD ROADS

Wheat is taking one-cent jumps these days of the muddy country roads. Today the local quotation is 96, advancing to those figures from the 95 cent price of Wednesday. A week ago the quotation was 93. It has gone up by one-cent jumps every time a new quotation was made. The advance is due in a large measure to the horrible condition of the country. And, it can be here stated, the country roads are being worse. They are now nearly a foot deep with mud.

The advance in the price of eggs is due to the same fact. They sell at retail today for 22 cents. The merchants are paying 21 cents for them. They make, consequently, the enormous profit of one cent a dozen, and then have to stand good for the bad eggs brought back. If the merchant had to depend on his egg sales for a living his family would starve to death.

Dealers say there isn't going to be any material reduction in the price of eggs until after Easter Sunday. There are lots of eggs in the country, but the difficulty is they can't be got to the city. And then, too, the demand is great, locally and in the big city centers. Country butter has also gone up slightly.

Potatoes are showing slight advances. Corn is up, selling in some cases at 65 cents a bushel. Until the good roads era comes there isn't going to be any material reductions on country produce or grains.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., March 28.—Expert opinion that the winter crop, as a whole, has vitality ample for favorable shaping under genial weather tended to increase bear sentiment today in the wheat crowd. May started at $1.03¾ to $1.03⅝, but reacted to $1.03¾.

Afterward an advance occurred as a result of the bulge in corn, but the effect did not last. The close was steady, with May wheat ¼@⅜c net lower at $1.03½.

There was active buying of corn by leading houses. May opened 73⅝c to 73½c and rose to 73⅝c.

Eagerness of southern buyers led to a further advance. St. Louis reported hay up to $28 a ton. The closing was steady, at 73¾c for May corn, ¼@⅜c above last night.

Oats were strong. May started at 54½c to 54½c and rose to 54⅝c.

Free realizing of profits depressed the market for packing house products. Initial transactions with July options were $17.30 for pork, $10.00 for lard and $9.75 for ribs.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, March 28.—Buying of stocks was resumed with considerable activity at the opening of today's market. One point gains were recorded by the Harrimans, St. Paul, Union Pacific and Great Northern Ore certificates. Various other issues gained from ½ to ⅝. The initial transactions in United States Steel, Union Pacific and Reading were on a moderately large scale.

The operations of the early session which became increasingly dull, suggested the transfer of speculative interest to the railways. United States Steel continued to show bear pressure as the result of the corporation's bond issue. On the "curb" a rise in Standard Oil of Kentucky to 900, an overnight advance of 350 points, was a sensational feature. Bonds were steady.

WOMAN IN PLEA FOR BOND ISSUE

Mrs. O. N. Guldlin Takes Issue With Opponents at Anti-Meeting.

SAYS THEY'RE WRONG

Apearing as a warm supporter of the proposed $200,000 bond issue for the purchase of river banks through the city, Mrs. O. N. Guldlin, prominent in club circles throughout the state and a member of the board of directors of the Fort Wayne Civic Improvement association, delivered an address last evening at the indignation meeting, held in the assembly room of the court house by those who are opposed to the bond issue.

Mrs. Guldlin deplored the fight being made against the proposition and declared that tax-payers in other cities the size of Fort Wayne are encouraging the improvement of parks and the construction of boulevards. She declared that the parks are for the working people and that park improvement is an omen of better civilization.

"I think that your children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, if you are fortunate enough to have such, will heartily thank you for having provided means of recreation, instead of condemning you for having, as was stated here tonight, fastened a yoke of debt upon them."

The meeting was called to order by Jesse Brosius and Anselm Fuelber presided as chairman. Both gentlemen delivered addresses. Other speakers were Dr. C. M. Gobeen, C. W. Orr and Ex-Mayor William J. Hosey. W. H. LaTourette also spoke and declared that he is not a candidate for any office in spite of reports to the contrary. Resolutions similar to those introduced at previous meetings were adopted, demanding the adoption by the common council of the Schroeder resolution which provides for postponing all action on the $200,000 bond issue until the park law can be amended, legalizing a vote on the issue.

Second Ward Hearing.

Second ward voters will be heard by the council this evening on the $200,000 bond issue. The council, as a committee of the whole, will allow the voters to show their sentiments by ballot. Every effort is being made by opponents of the issue to get out the full strength of their supporters in the different wards. Members of the Civic Improvement association are also working to secure a large attendance of those who favor the bond issue.

DISPENSATION FOR CARDS.

Albany, N. Y., March 28.—The church folk of Wantah, L. I., have discovered that it is a violation of the penal code to play cards for prizes, even though the playing is done in the parish house.

Senator Long, of Nassau, at the request of his church-going constituency, today introduced a bill amending the penal code by adding to the section the words, "The playing of cards or any other games for innocent amusement only in any parish house is not in any way to be construed as within the prohibition of this section.

CERTAINLY ENDS STOMACH MISERY

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Go in Five Minutes.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness Heartburn, Water Brash, Pain in Stomach and Intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Should you at this moment be suffering from Indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can surely get relief within five minutes. adv.

A meeting of the Allen County Patriotic association will be held this evening in the assembly room of the court house, at which time final petitions will be submitted, preparatory to waiting on the county commissioners, asking them to set aside a room in the court house in which the different military organizations may hold regular meetings.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION.

Resolutions Passed Concerning Leaving of Rev. J. H. McCartney.

The Fort Wayne Ministerial association at its monthly meeting this week adopted the following resolutions on the departure of Rev. J. H. McCartney, of the West Creighton Avenue Christian church:

"Inasmuch as our fellow member, Rev. J. H. McCartney, has been providentially called to another field of labor which necessitates his departure from our midst, the members of the Fort Wayne Ministerial association wish to express their appreciation of the character and worth of this brother. Rev. McCartney has been a faithful member of this association. Perhaps no member could be more sincerely missed. During the two years or more of his residence in Fort Wayne he has attended every meeting of the association.

"We sympathize with the church that is to lose his faithful ministrations, but we congratulate the church to which he goes. May he find as many friends and co-laborers in his new field as he has found here.

"We would very heartily commend Rev. McCartney to the fellowship of the ministers of the city to which he goes, and we wish him God-speed in all his labors.

The choir for the dedication consists of 200 voices. Its rehearsals have been in progress for the last few weeks under the direction of Prof. Richard. He goes there one evening each week. The musical program is an elaborate one. Thousands of people from all over that section of the country will be in attendance at the dedication.

ANNUAL LENTEN SERVICES.

Monday and Evening Meetings at First Presbyterian Church.

The Lenten services, which have been a feature of the First Presbyterian church every Holy Week for years, will be held as usual this season. Beginning next Monday evening there will be services promptly at 7:30 every evening with the exception of Saturday. They will last but forty-five minutes. The speakers, whose subjects will be given later, are the pastor, Rev. H. B. Master, Rev. E. H. Montgomery, of the Third Presbyterian church; Rev. C. Claud Travis, of the Wayne Street Methodist church, and Rev. Earle M. Todd, of the West Jefferson Street Church of Christ.

During the Holy Week noonday meetings will also be conducted at the church. This is following a plan that is being conducted in many other cities, having proven very successful. These services are something new in Fort Wayne. They are for men only. While they are held in the First Church the services are inter-denominational in character, the speakers being ministers of the various churches in the city. All business men and down town employes are invited.

The services are to be short, beginning at 12:30 sharp and ending promptly at 12:50—just a brief and interesting twenty minutes at the very time which most men can easily spare from their work and their lunch hour.

GOVERNOR SENDS TROOPS.

Springfield, Ill., March 28.—Gov. Deneen Wednesday ordered entrie Sixth regiment of the Illinois national guard to proceed to Rock Island to assist in preserving order. The request for troops came from the sheriff and the state's attorney of Rock Island after an unsuccessful attempt to assissinate the mayor of that city had convinced them that more trouble was brewing.

Adjutant General Dicks reported from Rock Island Wednesday that citizens are in a state of frenzy and the sheriff expects trouble tonight. He says a great many strangers are in Rock Island and are anxious to renew the riots.

Gov. Deneen was asked by Sheriff Bruner, of Rock Island county, to declare martial law in Rock Island. Adjutant General Dickinson left Wednesday for Rock Island, where he will act for the governor. Governor Deneen said he would await the report of Adjutant Dickson before deciding whether martial law would be proclaimed.

SCANDAL DRIVES MAN TO SUICIDE

Hichborn Buries Shame of Wife's Flight in Death.

LEAVES A LETTER

Washington, March 28.—Phillip S. Hichborn, a young lawyer and son of the late Rear Admiral Hichborn, killed himself last night in despondency and humiliation over the elopement more than a year ago of his wife, Elenore Hoyt Hichborn, with Horace L. Wylie, a prominent Washington attorney. He shot himself in the head with an automatic army revolver and died almost instantly.

Hichborn went for dinner to the home of his sister, Mrs. Paul S. Pearsall. The family was out and shortly after his arrival, servants heard a shot in his room. The door was broken in and he was found dead. On a table Hichborn had left a note, sealed. The coroner took charge of it and its contents may not be made known unless the families consent.

Text of the Note.

A person who said he had seen the note declared part of its text was:

"I am not to blame for this. I think I have lost my mind."

The remainder, which was brief, was said to be devoted to the mention of his little boy.

Death by his own hand adds one more chapter to a distressing domestic tragedy which shocked the most exclusive society of Washington and sent sorrow and humiliation to the homes of some of the capital's most prominent families.

The first intimation to the public that all was not well in the Hichborn family came in December, 1910, when Mrs. Hichborn and Wylie disappeared at the same time. Mrs. Hichborn's family indignantly denied stories of an elopement and declared she was a patient in a private hospital, broken down by the death of her father, Henry M. Hoyt, former solicitor general of the United States and at the time of his death counsellor for the state department.

That winter the couple, traveling as Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wise, were reported on the Nile, later in Paris and on the Riviera. Both families stoutly denied persistent stories of their whereabouts and no verification of the facts was had until last January. Hichborn sued for divorce. That action never came to trial and is ended by his death.

Leaves Baby Boy.

In April, 1911, Mrs. Hichborn returned to her mother, and simultaneously Wylie returned to his family in Washington. He had deserted a wife and four children. Mrs. Hichborn had left a 3-year-old baby boy. It is supposed this attempt at reconciliation was the result of a meeting of a few weeks earlier in Paris between Mrs. Hichborn, her sister, Mrs. Ferdinand VonStumm, the wife of a former attache of the German embassy here, and Mrs. Hoyt.

It really, however, was the outcome of an agreement between Mrs. Hichborn and Wylie that each should return home, and if both found a reconciliation impossible they should accept such a realization as a justification for their elopement. It appeared at first that the Wylies had become reconciled, but not so with the Hichborns.

The next step came last fall, when Wylie turned over to his wife and children real estate said to be worth $300,000 and personal property worth $100,000. It was thought this was the final action in bringing the family together, but it proved to be the step which separated them.

Wylie resigned from the clubs which had not already dropped him, and sailed from Boston for Europe. Mrs. Hichborn remained with her mother near Boston, and, after a hurried trip to Washington, sailed in November for Europe, from Montreal. Soon after the couple were said to have been seen in Westminster Cathedral, and later in France. That was the last Washington heard of their movements.

Young Hichborn remained in Washington, except for a short trip to California, from which he returned a few days ago. He never seemed to rise to his former spirits and a day or so ago his sister remarked to a mutual friend that she "was having a time to keep Phil together." He was known to a host of friends as the best type of a young man.

The prominence of his family and Mrs. Hichborn's gave unusual notice to the scandal. Rear Admiral Hichborn, for long the chief constructor of the navy, was referred to as the master shipbuilder and to his genius was given much of the credit for the performance of the American fleet in the war with Spain.

Mrs. Hichborn's father was a man of letters and a scholar fitted for the positions he held.

BANKRUPTCY CASE DISMISSED.

Judge Anderson Throws Case Out On Account of Error.

Because the trustees in the bankruptcy case of George G. Waldrop did not file their brief in support of the petition within the required time limit of ten days, Judge Anderson, of the federal court, dismissed the case, allowing the finding of Referee Sol A. Wood, of this city, to rule, granting two horses, valued at $4,000, to Bell Bros., of Wooster, Ohio.

When Waldrop was bankrupt two horses secured by a conditional purchase from Bell Bros., were in his possession and the trustee in bankruptcy included the horses among other assets. Bell Bros. claimed that the horses were their property and sought to have them returned. In a recent hearing Referee Wood decided that the horses belonged to the Ohio firm.

TWO EXQUISITE EVENING GOWNS.

Above is illustrated an evening gown of black Liberty satin with a graceful train. Silver embroidered tulle drapes the bodice and is continued diagonally across the upper part of the skirt. The same idea in a bolder design is carried out on the skirt; the train is undecorated. The pointed bodice effect which is so popular at present is carried out in hemstitched tulle. With the early spring months a riot of color has appeared in the shop windows, making the choice of a gown a delightful but bewildering occupation. The colors are as charming as their names. Limpet gray, Sahara brown, and flamingo blue vie with the older and more familiar friends, delphinium blue and wood violet, while those who cannot be satisfied with any of these can choose between carnelian green and iris. Everyone is busy shopping. The wonderful taffetas costumes which have been created appeal to the most exquisite taste. It is to be the day of taffetas; will be the hall mark of the fashionable woman.

RECIPES.

Stewed Beefsteak.

A thick slice of round is needed for stewed beefsteak. Stew together for twenty minutes a cupful of water, one onion grated or chopped very fine, a bay leaf, two cloves and a dozen peppercorns. Press this through a sieve, mix with two-thirds of a can of tomato soup. Pour a little in the bottom of a dripping pan, lay in the steak, pour a cupful over it, cover closely and cook in a moderate oven, allowing forty-five minutes for each pound of meat. Heat and serve the remainder of the sauce with the meat.

Somerset Pudding.

Take a stale sponge cake and stand on a serving dish. Prepare a cupful or more of the syrup from canned fruit. Baste this, a little at a time, over the cake until it is thoroughly soaked but unbroken. Make a soft custard with a pint of milk, three eggs, a pinch of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a suitable flavoring. When cold pour it round, not over, the cake. Decorate the top with candied cherries.

GAVE BEAUTIFUL CONCERT.

Harold Jarvis and P. Marinus Paulsen Assist Local Talent in Program.

Nearly four hundred people gathered at the Wayne Street M. E. church last evening and heard a very delightful musicale. The program was given by Harold Jarvis, tenor, of Detroit; P. Marinus Paulsen, of Marion, violinist; Miss Ethel Dowd, contralto; John B. Archer, organist, and Miss Emel Verweire, piano accompanist. That everyone was more than merely pleased was seen by the demands for added numbers, so the program was nearly doubled before the concert was ended. Mr. Jarvis' voice is of beautiful quality and his singing is expressive of much musical feeling. His selection from the oratorio of "Nain," an aria, "Out of the Depths," was sung with nobility of tone and dramatic interpretation. Particularly pleasing was Mr. Jarvis' rendition of the Gaynor, "A Song of Japan," while an encore of a religious character sung after the oratorio aria and called "He Lifted Me," was of an appealing and emotional quality that pleased so much another song was insisted upon. Mr. Archer accompanied Mr. Jarvis in the aria and following encores on the organ and the voice and instrument were beautiful together. Mr. Paulsen, a favorite violinist with audiences in this city, did noticeably fine work. Mr. Paulsen gets a tone of remarkable sweetness and purity. His group of selections, the "Preghiera," by Bazzini; a poem by Fibich and "Old Vienna Waltz" by Kreisler were charming in their delicacy, their perfection of phrasing and poetical interpretation. Mr. Paulsen never is wanting in technical equipment in anything he plays and his scholarly musicianship and refinement of musical feeling are equally apparent. Miss Ethel Dowd, of this city, came from Chicago, where she is a pupil of Frederick Root, for this recital. Miss Dowd has a contralto voice of sweet and rich toned quality and has made astonishing progress in her work. She made a decidedly pleasing impression as her unaffected manner and entire absence of mannerisms in singing contributed to her girlish and attractive appearance and lent charm to her songs, all of which she sang very well indeed. Miss Dowd's selections were Guy d'Hardelot's "Without Thee," which she sang beautifully, and a group from Cadman's American Indian songs. Miss Emel Verweire accompanied the singers and Mr. Paulsen in excellent style and gave the support of appreciative and musical understanding that makes her work always so valuable. Mr. Archer's organ numbers were characteristic of his good taste in registration and understanding of his instrument. The motor of the organ acted badly and prevented Mr. Archer from displaying the brilliance of technique of which he is capable.

Protecting Gowns on a Rainy Night

Girls are often worried by the thought of going out on a wet night to a dance or the theater when carriage or taxicab is not available. The idea of spoiling a one and only precious evening dress outweighs all prospects of enjoyment!

Here are a few suggestions that may help you to save your frock from mud and rain, and aid you to arrive in spick-and-span condition, looking your very prettiest and best, at the scene of festivity.

First, pay particular attention to the coiffure. If you arrange it yourself, let it be slightly tighter than usual, for dampness tends to loosen the waves; also wear a ribbon coiffure ornament that will hold stray "wisps" in place, rather than artifical flowers, etc.

Then tie your head up in a soft chiffon scarf or veil, winding it carefully about the hair so as not to disarrange it, and fasten it in a soft bow at the side. This is a becoming as well as practical arrangement.

Now for the dress and its protection. A simple method, effective against all but heavy rain, is to make a band of white elastic to fit around the hips. Slip it on over the head and pull your skirt through it in a deep fold until the hem is raised high enough above the ground to avoid all wetting. Even in dry weather this is a good plan when you have to walk any distance, and under a long coat the abbreviated skirt is not noticeable.

Do not carry your umbrella or bag with white gloves on—unless you mean to change them when you reach your destination. Wear long woolen gloves over the kid ones that will save you from the necessity of taking a muff.

If the flour you have been using is not quite satisfactory, try the "Puritan."

HELPFUL HINTS.

If the handle of a spoon is put between the leaves of a shut book lying on the table, the spoon will be held firmly in position, and both hands may be used for dropping or mixing the liquid one wants to put it in. If one book is not enough, two or more may be used.

Handkerchiefs that are wanted in a hurry should be soaked at night in cold water, and the first thing in the morning should be washed very carefully, rinsed thoroughly, and while quite wet should be spread against the window pane, where the sun will act as a dryer and the glass as an iron.

Each sack of "Puritan" Flour contains a valuable coupon. 2-24-t-t-s-tf

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO BE HAPPY?

Among the ancient philosophers there was great contention as to what was the true aim of life. One class maintained that pleasure was the aim or end of existence, while the other held to the belief that duty was the highest good.

Surely time has proved that the latter class of thinkers was correct. Although we of modern times may not always live up to our belief, yet there are few among us who would take exception to the belief that the highest good consists in obeying the three great fundamental laws of the universe—the law of service, the law of self-sacrifice and the law of love. In other words, the chief end of existence is not pleasure, but duty; not our own good, but the good of others; not the individual benefit, but the general, common gain. The ideal life is not the narrow life whose paramount factor is selfishness, but the great, broad, widely sympathetic life whose aim is the promotion of the good of all mankind.

For the universe there is a great plan. Nature comprises a large part of this plan. In nature the great fundamental laws are implicitly obeyed.

Service and Sacrifice.

Why should man as part of the great scheme be exempt from the common laws of service and sacrifice? If he neglects to apply these great laws to his life he will stand outside the harmony of the universe. In the lower forms of life obedience to the laws of service and sacrifice are mechanical and unconscious, but among the higher animals, and certainly among the highest form of animal life, mankind, service and sacrifice are founded upon the great law of love, and hence may be made conscious, grand, noble and glorious.

Love without service and sacrifice is not love at all. The life which is rooted and grounded in love naturally and without questioning gives itself to willing sacrifice and cheerful service. When a man realizes this he has gone a long step toward solving all the problems of his life.

In the great plan of the universe we men and women are but as mere atoms in relation to the whole. Each life which seems so important to the owner thereof is but as a blade of grass in a hundred acre field. As Alexander Pope says:—"All are but parts of one stupendous whole." But we should never lose sight of the fact that every part is necessary for the whole. Every life, though it seems so insignificant in comparison with the grand plan, is essential in carrying out that plan and bringing it to perfection.

Seeking Not Finding.

Since all are members one of another, and since no man can live a normal life if he lives for himself alone, never commit the error of thinking that your own individual happiness is the most important thing in the world.

To seek happiness is seldom to find it. The bluebird is not found by seeking. In striving to make others happy we attain our own happiness. In forgetting self and thinking of others we lose sight of our own sorrows, trials, troubles and vexations and learn to fix our mind on our blessings and the many happy things in life for which we should be supremely thankful.

The well spent life is the unselfish life, the life of toil and service for others, the life that strives to make the world a little better and brighter. There are such lives being lived about us, lives that approach the ideal, lives of self-forgetfulness and of consecration to others, lives whose fundamental law is love, lives whose owners have found the true aim of existence, the noblest and the highest good.

STRICKEN DOWN AT CONFERENCE

REV. TRAVIS IN CHAIR

Wabash, Ind., March 28.—Rev. F. G. Browne, of Columbia City, who was on the program last night for an address before the North Indiana conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, was stricken with paralysis during the day and was unable to speak. While the attack is not likely to prove fatal, it will be some time before he will be able to resume his work. Rev. Mr. Browne was stricken at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jester, old friends of the family, where he is being entertained.

Rev. C. C. Travis, of Fort Wayne, presided at the educational anniversary meeting last evening, and the principal address was delivered by Rev. Dr. F. J. McConnell, president of DePauw university.

Superintendents Report.

Reports were submitted yesterday by District Superintendents James A. Beatty, Fort Wayne; Somerville Light, Elkhart; C. C. Cissel, Kokomo; T. M. Guild, of Richmond, and B. S. Hollopeter, of this city.

The sacrament of holy communion was first on the day's program and following the participation in the service by the superintendents and all of the ministers, delegates and visitors who are members of the church took the sacrament. The tankard used in this service was first used by Bishop Asbury when the first Methodist conference was held in America.

Following the communion service, Rev. Dr. Dorie V. Williams, of Noblesville, the present secretary of the conference, was re-elected. His assistants are Revs. John C. White and W. A. Geist. Rev. F. A. Reichelderfer was named as statistician and will be assisted by Revs. M. Hobbs, J. S. Newcomb, P. H. Walter, W. B. Freeland, D. S. Jones, C. B. Daugherty, Silas Cates and F. A. Leemaster.

Misses First Conference.

A resolution was adopted instructing the conference to send a message to Rev. W. F. D. Paer, the oldest active member of the conference, who is ill at his home at Newcastle. Rev. Mr. Paer is 87 years old and this is the first conference he has missed in 71 years.

Dr. T. M. Guild is closing his term of six years as head of the Richmond district and he was presented with a typewriter from the Methodists of his district. All of the six reports of the district superintendents show the church has had a profitable year from both a financial and membership standpoint.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"THE PASSERS-BY,"

With Richard Bennett and An Excellent Frohman Company.

Last Saturday night saw the end of the Chicago run of "Passers-By" at the Blackstone theater, and on Friday evening it will be seen at the Majestic theater. This should prove one of the season's choicest offerings. The company is an excellent one, equal to the best Charles Frohman has sent to us. The program calls for Richard Bennett, Julian Royce, A. G. Andrews, Ernest Lawford, Louise Rutter, Ivy Hertzog, Katherine Florence, etc. The author of the play, C. Haddon Chambers, had his choice of the cast and undoubtedly he selected one that he thought ideal. "Passers-By" is a strange tale, but "the play's the thing," and Friday will show us the hit of the season. We know it is a modern piece and something that made a stir in London, New York and Chicago.

"MUTT AND JEFF"

At the Majestic Next Week.

"Mutt and Jeff," those two comic fellows, whom Bud Fisher made popular through a series of cartoons which have had wide publicity all over the country, have been transplanted to the stage, through the medium of a musical comedy bearing the same title. After a successful run at the Globe theater, Boston, it comes to the Majestic Monday, matinee and night. Gus Hill, the noted New York manager, is sponsor for the production, which in itself is an assurance that the offering will be thoroughly up to date, clean and full of wholesome and unalloyed humor. In this particular piece, which by the way is in three acts, and which contains enough song hits, jingling music, ensembles and girls that are really pretty; they are said to be irresistible. Fourteen original numbers and song hits are strewn through the action of the comedy, which is always spirited and acceptable.

A New Book Play at the Majestic Tuesday.

"The Shepherd of the Hills," a dramatization of Harold Bell Wright's "best seller," will be the attraction at the Majestic Monday, matinee and night.

This story of the Ozark Mountains has proved very popular in novel form and as a play it is said that its success indicates it will exceed the popularity of the book.

Messrs. Gaskell and MacVitty, the producers, have given it a very beautiful scenic mounting, the mountains of the Ozarks lending themselves to the best in the scenic artist's art. The cast has been carefully selected, in fact, it is said to be unique in the matter of types.

Promises won't overcome hair trouble. The manufacturers of Newbro's Herpicide promise nothing which is not justified by an intelligent use of this preparation. The desired end ultimately becomes an accomplished fact. This is the reason that Herpicide has thousands of satisfied friends all over the world.

By keeping the scalp clean and healthy and destroying the dandruff germ, Newbro's Herpicide makes beautiful hair. Herpicide prevents the hair from falling and allows it to grow unhindered and naturally except in cases of chronic baldness which is incurable.

FOREIGNERS IN CHINA WANT AID

Trade Interests Do Not Look for Stable Government From Republic.

Kanling, March 25.—The foreign interests in China are speculating as to whether stable government, when it comes, will be republic or a foreign protectorate. The fact that troops of all nations are being landed here and that it is so much easier to get troops into a commercially coveted territory than it is to get them out, leads to a belief that they are here to stay.

Troops in China are not new by any means, but heretofore when the troops have come they were brought for the specific purpose of aiding a recognized government to enforce order. Now there is really no recognized government, and there is considerable indefiniteness about the prospect of when there will be one.

The trouble in China is graft—"squeeze" they call it here. Troops who would ordinarily be loyal to the new government are hungry and hungry men make trouble. The new heads of the government talk frankly about many things and through their statements the soldiers have learned that money has been set aside for the army. They know they have not received this money and that it must have stuck to the fingers of their officers, hence they are very angry and are turning foragers.

Forty years ago the customs were taken out of the hands of the Chinese officials because this "squeeze" would not permit enough money to reach the public treasury to pay an English indemnity that was due. The masses did not care then and would not care now what becomes of the customs. It is just as easy for the masses to work for the benefit of a foreign people as it is for them to build private up fortunes for the few customs officers. And the masses don't care much about these rioting soldiers and the robbery that is going on. This is an old story to the average Chinese.

The chief difference is that in this crisis, while all eyes are on China, the rest of the world hears about it. Cheated and hungry soldiers and organized robbers have been acting this way for many, many years.

But it is the Chinese trade that interests the foreigners and these conditions are merely mentioned to show how easy it would be to make a showing that the soldiers were needed here. There was no police system under the empire and it is likely to be a long time before the "squeeze" is squeezed out of the officials so that a police system can be organized in the republic. Dr. Sun and President Yuan have not made much progress so far.

In 1900 partition plans were made that would hand over almost every port that ships could enter to a foreign power. The danger of territorial partition has probably passed, but the trade needs remain and the expected move is a protectorate.

Among other trade arguments can be raised that of piracy and the demand that the republic stop this looting of trade craft, which is a monumental task and one that will require more of a navy that the baby government has at hand or is likely to have until some system of taxes reaching the national strong box is devised.

Canton boasts of the highest civilization in China, and Hongkong is as safe as St. Louis. Yet the waterways along the 90 miles between the two cities are infested with pirates. Immediately outside the walls of Canton is a "water" city composed of people who are born and spend their lives and die in boats. The Cantonese speak of these people as a distinct race and do not permit them within the city. All the industries of the water city are carried on afloat.

By common report, pirate forces are recruited from the water city. If men are caught in the act of piracy and overpowered, as seldom occurs, their heads come off, but otherwise they keep on at the business of looting peaceful cargo craft for a living, and nobody seems to think the worse of them for it.

The Home of Vice.

The Portugese possession of Macaoa is only 40 miles from Hongkong in the direction away from Canton. Passenger steamers run down there daily. Tourists who make the trip have a new experience in finding in the dining saloon forward a stack of rifles loaded and ready for use, and throughout the trip a man in uniform paces the forward deck with a gun over his shoulder.

These precautions are taken against passengers in the Chinese cabin amidships. Attacks from that quarter have been of such frequent occurrence, purely for robbery, that they are always expected.

The reason this class of passengers on these boats is so dangerous is that Macao is the refuge for the Chinese underworld. The settlement is built like the top of a roof, sloping in two directions. On one side of the ridge respectability lives, and on the other side vice. The government licenses vice and visitors at all curious to inspect any form of it may find the doors wide open. Chinese authority cannot invade that precinct. Any criminal is safe there.

Macao is the only Portugese colony that pays. Its income is from licenses for vice, and it amounts to enough not only to support that colony but to make up a large deficit in Timor. The people on the respectable side of the ridge have their cathedrals, observe the saints' days, enjoy the pleasures of cultivated society. Their consciences are at ease. Macao is rather proud of its designation as "The Monte Carlo of the East."

THE MOLLIECODDLES

By FREDERICK WALWORTH BROWN

They needed a scapegoat and they pitched on us.

IN the camp of the Molliecoddles, at the rear with the baggage-wagons, men sat silent about the fires and avoided one another's eyes. Now and then one cursed bitterly and the others would turn his way for an instant and then come back to their vacant staring. Bewilderment seemed to be their attitude, utter blind bewilderment.

"We never had a chance," muttered one. "We never had a chance."

Another suddenly flung down a paper he had been reading in the red light, cursed like a drover for a moment, and fell silent again.

In his tent the colonel spoke bitterly to his adjutant.

"They needed a scapegoat, and they've pitched on us," he said.

A common sentiment ran from the head of the regiment to the meanest private in the ranks. It was, moreover, a perfectly legitimate, well-founded sentiment, and the facts upon which it was based were these:

The Molliecoddles were a brand-new regiment. Most of them had been clerks and small business men in a certain well-known city. Their hands were white and soft and their chests not astonishing either for length or breadth.

Therefore, because the spirit is less easily discerned than the flesh, their comrades-in-arms, veterans of two campaigns, dubbed them the Molliecoddles on their first appearance.

The regiment suffered the label with only a mild resentment. Individually, they knew they were not cowards, and they trusted confidently in the future to justify their presence in arms.

As a regiment they had not yet found themselves. They had no esprit de corps. They were a collection of units instead of the single and particular entity a regiment should be. Then came the catastrophe.

The army was facing the enemy with a river in the rear, and it so happened that the Molliecoddles held the extreme right wing. Here the general commanding made his initial mistake.

There being no natural defenses to protect this wing, it should in common proudence have been flung back to rest upon the river and thus present a line of fire in the event of a flanking movement by the enemy.

This was not done, and the Molliecoddles were left strung out in air. Not even the colonel, who had been a successful merchant, understood the perilous insecurity of their position, and the regiment calmly laid itself down to sleep that night, expecting battle on the morrow and confident of acquitting itself well, but feeling itself secure for the immediate future.

Anon came a heavy column of the enemy, driving in the pickets, and itself arriving on their heels. The line of battle faced south. The attack fell from the west.

Two companies succeeded in forming, facing about on the new line, and firing a round or two before they were overwhelmed. Then the regiment, and after it the brigade, was rolled up, telescoped, crushed, with hardly a chance to fire a shot.

It was not their fault. The best and most seasoned regiment in the army could have done no better under the circumstances.

But when the major-general had collected the shattered remnant of his forces on the safe side of the river, he felt the need of a scapegoat, as the colonel had divined, and recognized the Molliecoddles as the logical and helpless candidates for the position.

He nominated them accordingly in his report, and the army, bitter over defeat and not at all understanding, instantly elected them unanimously. In two days the whole country knew, beyond hope of refutation, that the Molliecoddles had brought disaster on the division by conspicuous cowardice in the face of the enemy.

The Molliecoddles, battered and still dazed, reviewed the situation with a sort of savage bewilderment. Individually, they knew they were not cowards. Collectively they were inarticulate, uncertain, perplexed.

Consequently they suffered many things, though by no means with meekness. There were black eyes and broken heads in neighboring regiments, and a lively lust for blood and slaughter in the minds of the Molliecoddles.

In the meantime they were detailed to the rear to guard the baggage-train, and the cup of their humiliation overflowed in bitter murmurings against their lot. But Fate had her eye upon them, and while they were yet in the mood to kick out viciously at the touch of a feather, she sent them a golden opportunity.

Having hurled his opponent back across the river, the enemy proceeded to take the offensive. By a rapid march in the night a long column crossed the river some miles above, aiming by a wide detour to fall suddenly and unexpectedly upon the rear of the demoralized force.

So silently and swiftly was this maneuver accomplished that no word of it reached the rival general till his communications had been cut and a frightened crowd of teamsters and camp-followers came streaming up the road.

Close on their heels appeared the van of the eager enemy. In their way stood only the despised and rejected Molliecoddles.

At the first sign of trouble the colonel of the regiment deployed his men across the road and prepared to hold that line "till the cows came home."

A stone fence afforded excellent protection and the Molliecoddles spread themselves along this breast-work with the hot blood humming in their veins. Cowards, eh?

They would show what sort of cowards they were. They ceased that moment to be a collection of units, and were in a way to become a regiment.

They were madmen, most of them, ready to go red-eyed and homicidal at a pin-prick. They had been goaded and buffeted with no chance to reply. They had read ironical newspaper comments by men who had never smelled powder till their nerves were strung like hair-triggers.

Almost to a man, they yearned for slaughter with the primitive thirst of savagery. They wanted to get square. They wanted to clear themselves. They wanted to show up their critics for the blatant liars they were.

Across a field in front of them came a line of hurrying men, followed by another and another. They were overlapped on either flank. What matter? An aide galloped up to the colonel.

"Hold them for twenty minutes!" was his cry, almost despairing. "Hold them if you lose every man."

"I'll hold 'em," said the colonel grimly.

He knew the temper of his men. It was identical with his own.

Directly a battery whirled up and unlimbered in the road. That would help. The staff officer had gone to hurry up the support. The colonel stalked along his line.

Across the open ground in front the enemy neared rapidly. They came almost recklessly, expecting little opposition. The only task they saw before them was to drive their foe into the river.

They made for the stone wall with a yell. At sight of the guns in the road a shout of triumph broke out. These should be the first fruits of their victory. The colonel, crouching now behind the wall, surveyed them coming, only his head projecting above the coping.

The impatient privates fingered their weapons and cursed beneath their breath. Would they never get the word to fire? Were they to be run over again and trampled on without a chance?

A hundred yards away a compact line of men was toiling up the slope. In the road a column swung forward full in the face of the silent guns. Then when men's nerves were fairly snapping with the tension, the colonel gave the word.

The front of the stone wall burst into flame, and above the rattle of musketry came the bursting roar of the guns in the road, as the gunners leaped from concealment. Out on the grassy slope the first line of hurrying, eager men melted into shapeless masses on the ground.

In the road the grape and canister tore great holes in the compact column. The surprisers were surprised. The front ranks recoiled, shattered out of all semblance to formation.

But the attack was delayed for only a moment. Behind that foremost rank was another which came steadily on, leaving a man now and then sprawling out or writhing in the grass, but driving straight forward notwithstanding. Down the line behind the stone wall went the command, "Cease firing."

It almost caused a mutiny, but the officers persuaded the madmen to obey. The enemy came on with a yell then. Evidently it was but an insignificant force in their front. They were minded to run over them.

Yelling like fiends, they rushed across the open. It was Bunker Hill repeated. Again the colonel let them come within a hundred yards before he gave the command to fire, and again when the order came and the sheet of flame burst forth the advancing line withered as before the breath from a blazing blast furnace.

Flesh and blood could not face it. They were men who would go unflinchingly where there was one chance of coming through.

Here there was none. It was death, bald and certain. Those who could recoiled down the slope. Many stayed silent in the grass.

Meanwhile the carnage in the road was fearful. The steady plying of the guns loaded with grape and canister had piled the advancing column in a mass of dead and dying till the order came to halt and deploy across the adjoining field.

This added to the labors of the devoted Molliecoddles. The next advance was in skirmish formation and far more difficult to stop.

Men began to fall behind the breast-work. Bullets sang over their heads and spat viciously into the wall in front of them.

But fifteen of the needed twenty minutes had elapsed. If they could hang on for five more!

They were firing at will now. The volleys had ceased, but there was a steady, continuous rattle of musketry. The colonel walked back and forth behind his line, fiercely chewing his mustache, pausing to glance at the cloud of skirmishers coming steadily on, or noting with a groan that his left was overlapped for a quarter of a mile and must speedily be turned.

It could not be helped. He was holding what he could, but his line was woefully thin and every moment becoming thinner. The singing bullets took a steady toll.

Down the slope before the stone wall a mass of men pressed forward yelling. The thin line behind the wall concentrated all its fire upon them, but it no longer availed. On they came, dogged, determined.

Men dropped steadily, but still they came on. The twenty minutes were up. Where were the reinforcements?

The colonel glanced about. Woods behind him shut out all view of the regiments and brigades hurrying breakneck to the rear that had become the front.

All he knew was that he was alone, protecting the army from overwhelming defeat. Cowards, were they?

Even in that red, fiery moment he had time for an instant of bitter pride and exultation as he viewed his dead behind the stone wall.

The rushing mass in front was close up now. He knew he could not stop them. He lacked the men. He had held them back for more than the time demanded of him.

Should he order his men to fall back? The regiment had done its work. More could not reasonably be asked of them.

They were outflanked on either hand, and about to be overwhelmed. Should he order them back?

There came to him another thought. "They called us cowards," and with that he hurried along the line with the command, "Fix bayonets."

He would stay there and meet them, if it cost him every man. "They called us cowards, boys," he shouted. "This is our chance."

On came that yelling wave in front. Loading and firing as fast as they could, the remnant of the regiment could not stop it. But not a man behind the stone wall flinched before it.

The inevitable weaklings that are in every regiment had long since sought the rear. These who stayed would stay to the end.

They were lamentably few, but those few were bad men to face. At their colonel's call they rose, gripping their weapons, whole men, men with bleeding heads, men with limp arms, men who rose only to fall again and again struggle to rise.

With a yell the wave broke over the stone wall, and in an instant the Molliecoddles were overwhelmed. Fighting like demons, madmen, or heroes, they went down before superior numbers, but not before they had taken full toll for their defeat.

Through his glasses the general in command saw their heroic stand. The regiments breaking from the woods behind saw it and burst into cheers. A sudden wave of firing broke out on either flank, and then the conquering enemy reeled before the charge of the advancing regiments.

A moment of fighting hand to hand, bayonet to bayonet, and then the fresh troops dropped behind the stone wall and poured a galling fire into the retreating foe. The day was won, the army was saved, and it was the Molliecoddles who had done it.

In the camp of the Molliecoddles that evening men sat weary and dejected about the fires. Their attitude seemed much the same as on that other evening. There were gaps in every group, and men's voices were low and awestricken.

They discussed their casualties with an appearance of wonderment. "Tucker's gone, eh?" "Billy Aken got it in the head." "They've took off Morton's leg," and so forth.

"How's the Old Man to-night?" asked one. "Heard anything?"

"They say he's doin' well. If he pulls through, I reckon they'll make him a brigadier."

"Too bad they got him. He hadn't ought to have stood up."

"Well, anyway, we held 'em."

That was the finale always. No matter what had come to pass, no matter who had died, or who was wounded, or who was missing: "Well, we held 'em."

A battery came past, the trace-chains rattling, the wheels clanking in the ruts.

"What regiment is that?" called an officer.

"The Molliecoddles," came the defiant answer.

"Oh!" said the officer, and the battery moved on.

But every gunner's eyes turned suddenly toward the camp-fires, and the Molliecoddles returned the gaze with erect heads. It was as though they asked: "If it wasn't for us, where would you be?"

And from the faces of the gunners one understood that they had no adequate answer.

STERZER TURNED BACK ONCE MORE

Has Been Sent to the Erie Club by the Management of the Cardinals.

GOT AN EVEN BREAK

Erie, Pa., March 28.—Manager Billy Gilbert has been notified by Roger Bresnahan, of the St. Louis Nationals, that Carl "Buck" Sterzer has been turned over to the Sailor team and he is pleased to get hold of him as he has always been a dependable man in the Central league.

He was drafted last fall from the Evansville club where he had played with Manager Aggie Grant and his record shows that he won half of his games with a club that was in the second division most of the time.

Sterzer showed ability while working out with the Cardinals this spring, but because of the fact that Bresnahan has about half a dozen first string battery men who have been under fire in the majors, he let out Sterzer. In passing sentence on this promising recruit, Bresnahan remembered his old friend, Billy Gilbert, and turned him over to the latter's care.

Frank Warrender, the well known ball player who is wintering in this city, spoke in the highest terms of Sterzer, having batted against him while in the Central league. He goes on record as declaring that no pitcher in the league this year will have anything on Buck.

The pitching staff now numbers five, and the total number of candidates is fourteen. Scanlon, a Pittsburg semi-pro pitcher, was added to the string last week. McLaughlin, an outfielder of Philadelphia, was rounded up by Manager Gilbert and his name sent in.

Manager Gilbert has sent word to President O'Connor that he will arrive in the city next Tuesday, April 2. He has lines out for six more players now with a couple of major league teams in the south, which players will be purchased by the local club when put on the market.

Work of rehabilitating Perry Field will commence as soon as the weather permits. The plant is in first-class shape and aside from bolstering up the fences in some parts and getting the diamond in shape, will need no further attention.

President O'Connor reports that about $4,800 has been received for season tickets to date. It is hoped the balance, or about $6,000 will be accessible within the next two weeks.

There remains to be sold seventy tickets. These can be had by applying at the chamber of commerce or to President Thomas O'Connor.

HERE IS A HUSKY COLT WHOM M'GRAW MAY RETAIN

FULLENWEIDER, GIANTS' COLT PITCHER IN ACTION.

Fullenweider, the colt pitcher, a husky youth, with speed and a good curve but a bit shy of control, is one whom several believe McGraw will keep a string on. He is a promising youngster and, if he develops as it is expected he will, he should prove of major league calibre in the spring of 1913.

SAME SORT WILL BEAT CONCORDIA

If Saints Can Put Up as Good Game Friday They Can Win.

CHASED CORBY HALL

If St. Mary's Athletic club's basketball squad puts up the same kind of an argument against Concordia college tomorrow night that it did in the tussle with Corby hall at the Odeon last night it will take three games to decide the city championship.

The Saints were beaten six points in the game with the final count thirty-seven to thirty-one, but the followers of the game, the players and the management were all highly pleased and greatly encouraged at the showing made against the second best basketball players in Notre Dame university.

With championships in all branches of sport to their credit the Corby hall men came to Fort Wayne with a big reputation and they played basketball right in keeping with the fame they had won but they had just a shade the best of the home talent. The game gave St. Mary's lads the confidence they need.

They went against a club last night that has been in training for six months, made up of men who practically live in a gymnasium, who have the advantage of good coaches and they expected to be badly beaten but went on the floor with the determination to give their patrons the best they had in them. And they certainly did.

Ten minutes of the first period witnessed the most brilliant play the Saints have ever put up in public. The squad simply took Notre Dame off its feet by its dazzing passing and basket shooting and kept the spectators on their toes.

Another thing demonstrated was the gameness of the home team. After the enemy had taken a good, long lead the Athletics tore into them and fought hard enough to gain part of the lost ground. When the game was in its last stages all of the men were completely blown and there was little fight left in either club.

There was no attempt at individual play and no starring in the game. Every man was out to win and as soon as they saw they had an even chance with the students they cut in with a brand that fairly sizzled for the forty minutes they were on the floor.

There was no change in the line-up and the same combination will be pitted against Concordia college in the same hall tomorrow night. In the preliminary the St. Mary's second squad beat the second team of the Active Turners in a game that furnished a lot of amusement. The score:

Corby Hall (37).	St. Mary's (31).
Bergman	F. ..... Poll
Bensberg	F. ..... Hoffman
Gushart	C. ..... E. Jockel
Mehlen	G. ..... Haffner
Donovan	G. ..... Eckrich

Field Goals—Bergman 10, Bensberg 2, Gushart 2, Mehlen 2, Poll 6, Hoffman 5, Jockel 2, Haffner 1.

Goals on Free Throws — Bergman 3, Poll 3.

Referee—Lauer.

Time of Halves—Twenty minutes.

Notes of the Game.

In his efforts to be fair Referee Lauer gave Corby hall the best of it, allowing its players to hold, bite, scratch and a lot of other things not contemplated under the rules.

The Saints made their speed count against the beef of the visitors.

Games ought to be started at the advertised time. There were a number of delays last night that could have been avoided.

The Athletics displayed better condition last night than is ordinarily found in an independent team.

"Red" Donovan, who starred here last fall as a member of the Corby hall football team, was on the Notre Dame squad.

HAS HUSKY CATCHING TRIO.

Dayton, O., March 28.—With the arrival of Catchers Barton and Armstrong Punch Knoll's backstopping crew is complete, and Punch is well pleased with the looks of his catchers, too.

Konnick, Barton and Armstrong are all husky fellows. Armstrong is the tallest of the trio, but Mike and Barton are both about the size the unwritten laws of baseball require a catcher to be.

HOT IN THE CALCIUM LIKE PLAYERS

While he is not in the calcium light and doesn't get applause like the players on St. Mary's Athletic club basketball team, Clarence Alter is a big cog in the machinery that has served to make the game popular and successful here this season.

He is the business end of the game. He engages the clubs, does all the correspondence, rents halls, secures clubs for preliminaries and gets out the tickets and does a hundred and one things that are necessary to get the games booked and started. After that he rests.

Fortunately he has back of him a lot of players who are not in the game for the money they can make out of it. They like the sport and an even break is satisfactory to them, although they would like to make enough to supply all of their equipment for the games.

In booking Corby hall the manager made a master stroke. He gave fandom a chance to see how good his men really are and at the same time injected a lot of confidence into them for the fray with Concordia college tomorrow night.

The game has been made popular and the patrons have learned enough to pick out the good and bad plays and to keep a pretty intelligent line on what the players are doing.

CLARENCE L. ALTER.

CANTON HAS ONE MAN NOT SIGNED

Cy Dawson Refuses to Send in His Contract and is the Last.

O'CONNELL IS IN LINE

Canton, O., March 28.—Cy Dawson is now the only man on the Canton reserve list who has not sent in his signed contract to play under the banner of Ed Gremminger in 1912, for Charles O'Connell, the lanky and effective heaver, has come into the fold. President Yost received the document that makes O'Connell a candidate for the Statesmen this morning from the Pennsylvania home of the elongated twirler.

O'Connell had never been considered a hold-out, even though he had not signed up. Neither Yost or the manager had heard a word from the pitcher since the close of the season last fall, but they anticipated no difficulty in annexing him to the squad.

"O'Connell just delayed sending in his contract," said Yost. "It's his nature, for he is one of those slow, easy going fellows who refuse to be hurried when there is no great need of it. I felt certain that he would sign up and thought that he might drop in here some day and hand me his contract without saying a word."

O'Connell's blue slip was unaccompanied by letter. He established a precedent by not declaring himself in fine condition and able to pitch great ball. The customary prediction of a good season was noticeably absent, but should not cause the fans any worry, as he would not say a word even if he felt equal to Christy Mathewson.

There are now eight pitchers signed up for try-outs this spring, three of them from last year's team. Six are right handers and the other two side-wheelers. Of the right-hand veterans O'Connell is the likeliest, for he has a fine repertoire of curves and a good head, in addition to a supply of nerve and coolness. He was rated a winning pitcher last season.

DOEHRMAN GRIPS LEAD IN LEAGUE

Takes Fresh Hold and Opens Up Gap Between First and Second.

GERMANIAS WIN OUT

Will Doehrman not only gripped with a firmer hold the lead in the Fort Wayne Bowling association race for high individual average in his games at the Metropolitan alleys last night, but he rolled over 600 pins and gave Schwartz a hard battle to hold high score with the 238 he shot in the opening game.

Doehrman's score opened up a gap between him and the second man and he can rest on easy street for a few days, as the player who passes him in the chase for individual honors will have to do some remarkable bowling in the next few weeks. The Germanias took the whole series from the Alt Heidelbergs and never were in danger except in the first game when a hard battle was staged.

Schwartz had a double century average in sight at the close of his second game, but he drew three splits in the third and blew one spare, falling seven pins short. The winners of last night's match pulled out in the lead with an advantage that it will be hard to overcome with only four or five weeks more to bowl.

However, the club has never been able to score as many pins as the men rolled in their game at Chicago when they took fourth place in the tournament.

Tucker rolled the only double recorded on the losing side and this gave him high average with Frank Carr only four pins behind him. The scores:

FIVE YEARS TO CULTIVATE CONTROL

St. Louis, March 27.—Roy Golden will have five more years to acquire control. If, in this length of time, he cannot put 'em over, then he will be released. That's a mighty long time to give a young pitcher to develop, but this season and the four after Roy can continue his Borneo tactics before Rog Bresnahan will give the kid the T. C. degree.

The fact that Bresnahan believes Golden has the making of a wonder is the reason that the Cincinnati lad will not be turned loose for five years. "I'd be a fool, wouldn't I, if I'd become disgusted with Golden, release him and then have some other manager pick him up and he'd be a sensation?" is the way Bresnahan puts it.

"Golden has speed like Walter Johnson; he has curves, and all he lacks is control. That will come to him some day, and when it does, then I'll have the king of pitchers. Roy is big, can stand the steady drill of pitching whenever you call upon him, and if it takes him five years to get the ball over, I'll still hold him.

"Look at Marquard, Adams, Reulbach, Camnitz, Harmon and others. They couldn't find the plate with a searchlight for several years. But Golden outclasses all of these and he'll be just what I predict when he masters control. And I'm going to give him five years to do it, too."

St. Louis, Mo., March 28.—Mrs. Helen Britton's influence in the management of the St. Louis Nationals was reflected here today when tickets for games were placed on sale in several drug stores in the down town section.

Heretofore women who wanted to buy tickets downtown were obliged to send to saloons. Mrs. Britton, who came here yesterday from Cleveland for a conference with President Steininger and Manager Bresnahan, declared it was time women fans received more attention. The ticket order resulted. Mrs. Britton is owner of the St. Louis Nationals.

TO CHANGE DRIBBLE RULE.

Fargo Player Has Developed New Scheme To Carry the Ball.

Minneapolis, March 28.—Dr. J. Cooke, physical director at the University of Minnesota, has gone to New York to take part in the annual spring meeting of the national basketball rules commission to be held tomorrow.

According to Dr. Cooke, few changes in the rules are contemplated. One, however, on which he will ask legislation, is a clearer definition of the "Dribble" rule, a player on a Fargo, N. D., college team having devised a system of tossing the ball from hand to hand and carrying it to any part of the floor. There is no provision against this, it is said.
